The 1924 WYO

VOLUME 16

Published by The JUNIOR CLASS
of
THE UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING

THE Junior Class dedicates the "Cowboy" WYO to the man who embodies all of those qualities we like to attribute to the tireless rider of the open range—quick and accurate decision, the ability to meet any situation which may arise, the vigorous, straightforward manhood, the lasting comradeship and the unfailing courtesy of the cowboy combined with the finest attributes of the scholar.—

Arthur Griswold Crane,
President,
University of Wyoming.

ARTHUR G. CRANE, A. M., Ph. D.,
President
University of Wyoming

Foreword

In endeavoring to portray the college year as completely as possible, it is the aim of the 1924 "WYO" to incorporate and perpetuate our most valuable heritage—the tradition of the cowboy. As the frontier and the open range become things of the past, the cowboy becomes more and more of a memory, but it is a memory which we should cherish, which will mean more to each succeeding generation. Feeling that our tradition is unique, is picturesque, is inspiring, it has been used as a central theme and the "Cowboy" Wyo is presented herewith.

A WESTERNER

Tall of stature and gaunt of frame,
Always in the open in life's game;
As rugged as Wyoming's hills,
Pure and clean as her mountain rills;
Kind and lovable, stalwart and true—
A man's man and a woman's, too!

—E. Richard Shipp.

THE CAMPUS

Where the western lights'
long shadows
Over boundless prairies
fling

And the mountain winds
are vocal
With thy dear name Wyoming

There it is the Brown and Yellow
Floats in loving loyalty

And the college throws its portals
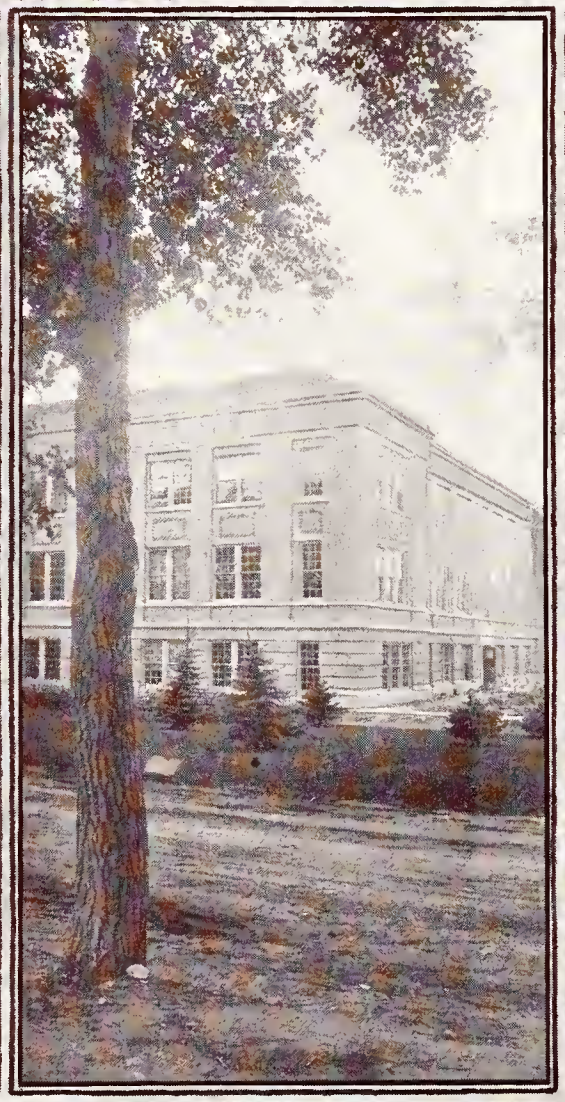
Open wide to all men free



Yonder we can see it
standing
Circled by the purple hills

While the flaming fire of sunset
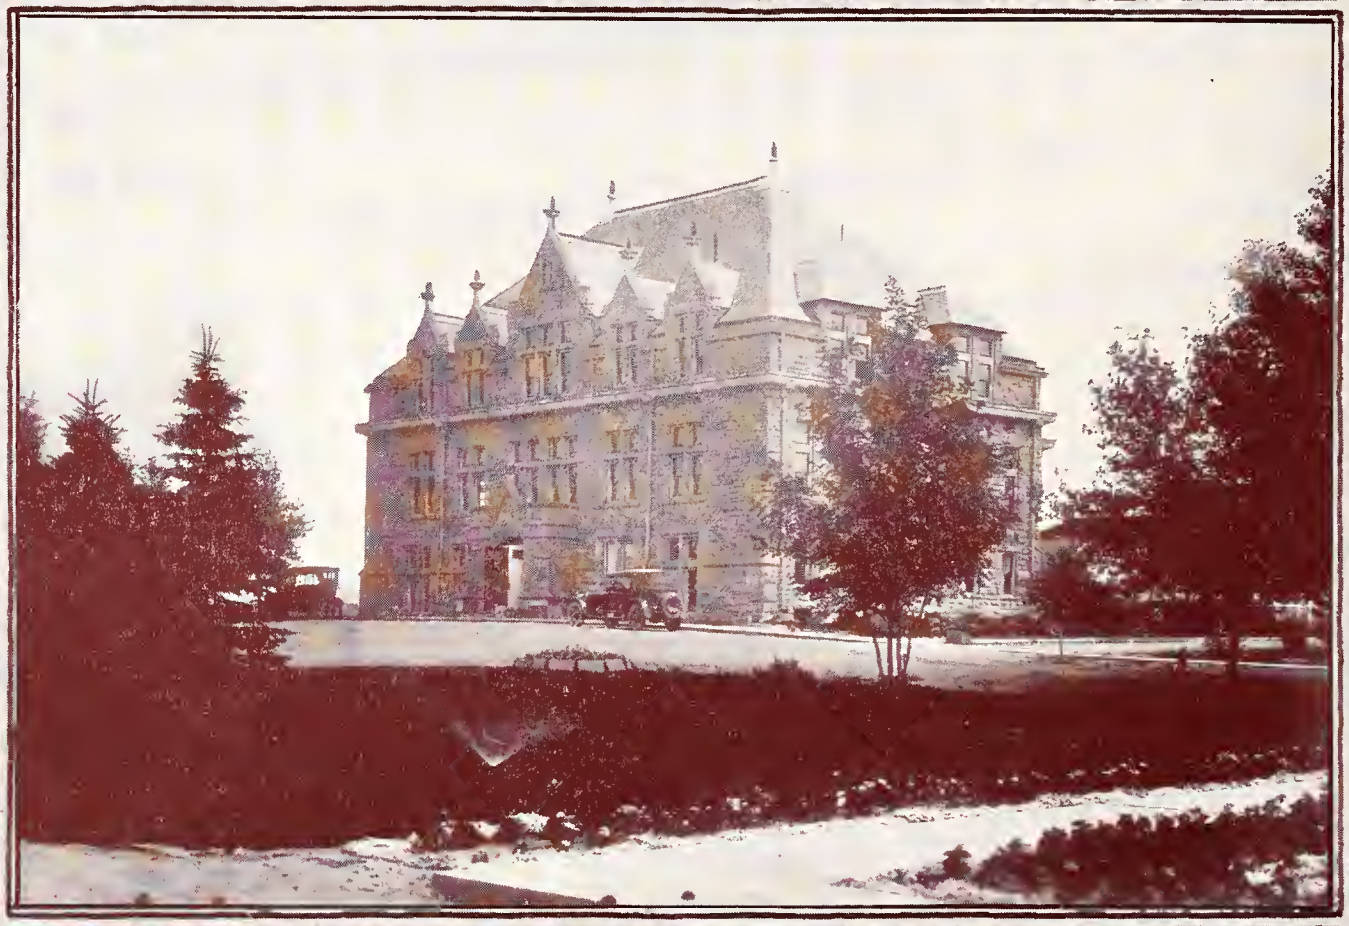
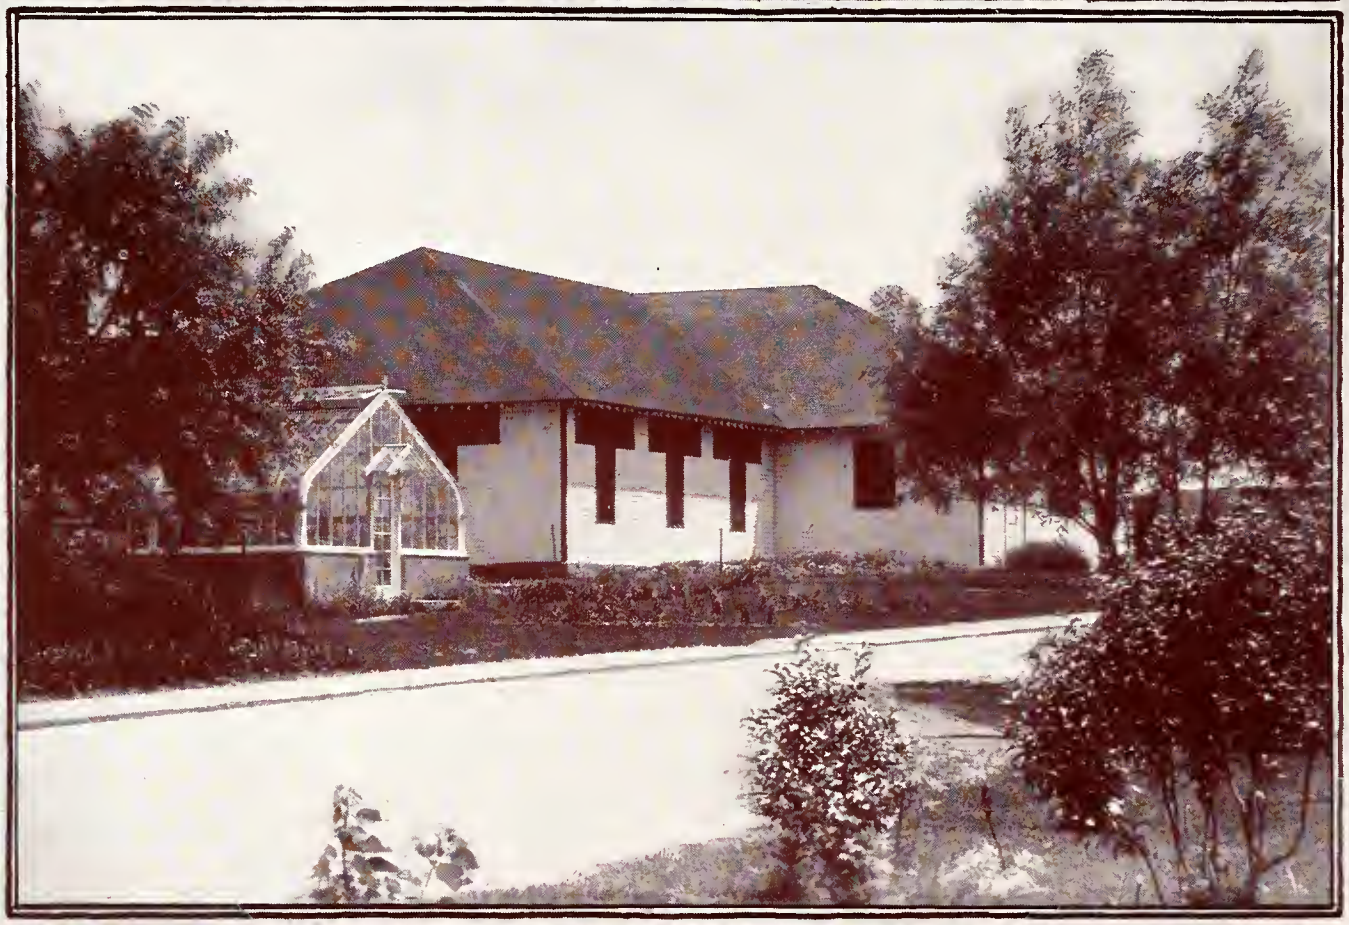
Every western window fills



'Tis the college, ah we know it,
Shrine of many joys and tears

And the rays that light
upon it
Are prophetic of its years



Shady lanes adorn her campus
And the green-leafed trees of spring

Flowers near the shrine of wisdom
Happy hours of study bring

And so our songs we bring
Our Alma Mater sing

To her our hearts shall cling
Shall cling forever more

THE DUDE RANCH

We used to run a cow-ranch
  In all that old term meant,
But all our ancient glories
  In recent years have went;
We're takin' summer boarders,
  And, puttin' it quite rude,
It's now the cowboy's province
  To herd the festive dude.

We used to run an outfit,
  The greatest in the West;
Our cowboys were the wonders—
  Our roundups were the best;
The punchers still are with us,
  But now they merely guide
The tenderfoot from Boston
  Who's learnin' how to ride.

We used to brand our cattle
  And ship 'em wide and far;
But now we import humans
  From off the Pullman car;
The dudes have got us captured
  And tied and branded, too;
And the cowboy's readin' Ibsen
  When his daily toil is through.

College of Liberal Arts

The College of Liberal Arts was the first college on the campus, opening in the fall of 1887. At that time there was just one class, the freshman. A new class entered each succeeding year, and in June 1891 the first class was graduated. Each following commencement has seen a goodly number of students from the College of Liberal Arts.

At first there were few departments and presented curricula, but with increasing financial resources new departments were added and the curricula enriched and made largely elective. At the present time there are sixteen departments that offer courses sufficiently diversified to meet the needs of a thousand students, and that have an adequate instructional force to teach these courses.

In addition to the sixteen departments mentioned there has been added to the College of Liberal Arts a Division of Commerce, and a Division of Music. Both these Divisions lead to degrees and are prepared to give the adequate opportunities to students who seek preparation for careers in business or music.

The College of Liberal Arts is the center about which the University has been built. It is, and will continue to be, the college that offers the broad education sought by students who can defer, for a time, professional training. Its function is so to reveal the various aspects of all phases of civilization that the student may have an intelligent basis for the understanding of the problems of life and such balance of mind as to enable him rightly to interpret them, and at the same time to give the student that cultivation that shall enable him to devote his leisure to the pursuit of happiness.

College of Agriculture

Agriculture in Wyoming has always engaged the attention of a large number of our most prominent men. Many of our leaders in the government of the State have been at some time connected with ranches. One needs only to mention some of our leading Governors of the past and our two United States Senators of today, in proof of this fact. Agriculture in Wyoming has always been considered one of the State's most worthy enterprises.

These facts give the Agricultural College of the University of Wyoming a place of peculiar importance. Agriculture, then, is the enterprise of the successful men of Wyoming and one in which all are interested. It is a common ground upon which the free people of this great State meet and understand each other. The purpose of the school is to train men and women in the science and art of agriculture, and women in the science and art of home making.

JOHN C. FITTERER, Dean of the College of Engineering

College of Engineering

To keep pace with the material progress, in fact, to lead to new achievements, colleges of engineering everywhere are called upon to revise, enlarge and correlate their various curricula. The profession is in a constant state of change, because the world itself alters its demands upon it. We might say that the best index of a profession's vitality is the ready ease with which new problems are solved.

Fundamentally all engineering is one and the same. The numerous applications, however, provide somewhat separate but yet closely allied fields of labor. The method of procedure, based upon a common training, is the essential thing.

With this idea in mind the College offers each student of engineering basic courses supplemented by some definite specialization—the broader outlook first—the more intensive effort later.

As each new fact or law of Nature is developed, its practical application to the affairs of mankind follows forthwith. Economic usefulness is the shibboleth of today, and will even more discriminatingly answer as such tomorrow.

Our University, through its College of Engineering, provides the earnest student with the opportunity to acquire suitable training to cope with western conditions. The continued growth of both is the best criterion of effective service to the State.

College of Education

The organization of the University of Wyoming makes it possible for students in the College of Education to come in direct contact in the classroom with other student groups who are preparing for all sorts of life careers. This tends to give the prospective teacher a cosmopolitan attitude, a breadth of vision, a tolerance for the opinion of others, and a respect for the intelligence of persons engaged in other occupations and professions—elements which are necessary for success in the field of teaching. Service in the elementary schools, because of our social environment, will continue to be the responsibility of women. Our high schools offer equal opportunities to both men and women. Vigorous men of judicial temperment have unlimited opportunities in the field of administration.

May the young men and women of this University give serious consideration, when deciding upon a life career, to the profession of teaching!

The Law School

Though the University was organized in 1881, it was not until 1920 that there was incorporated in the regular curriculum a professional course of law. Realizing the neglected opportunity for service in the training of a profession so important to the political and economic development of the State, prominent members of the bench and bar joined with President Aven Nelson in urging the establishment of a standard law school. Accordingly, the Law School was organized in the fall of 1920, thus marking another step forward in the extension of the University's field of contribution to the people of the State.

Unlike the majority of American law schools, the Law School was established in the beginning upon a solid foundation of entrance requirements and standards.

In the brief period of but one student generation, the Law School has made most gratifying progress. The year 1923-1924 particularly marks noteworthy developments in the history of the school. The school moved into its new permanent quarters in the Library building, where adequate facilities will greatly increase its efficiency. In this year, also, the Law School was honored by receiving an "A" classification by the American Bar Association, the highest classification given by that body and shared by only the strongest schools. The year also marks the attainment of membership in the Association of American Law Schools a privilege conditioned upon the adherence to rigid standards and the maintenance of ample equipment and teaching force.

The year's accomplishments, it is hoped, will pave the way for greater growth in the future, as well as constituting an additional obligation of the most efficient service to the State.

THE PONY EXPRESS

The eddies swirl in the treacherous ford,
And the clouds gather dark ahead.
And over the plain, where the sunlight poured,
Scarce a gleam does the pale moon shed.

The pony drinks, but with gasp and sob,
And wan is the man at its side;
The way has been long, past butte and knob,
And still he must ride and ride.

Now the cinch is drawn and the plunge is made,
And the bank of the stream is gained;
Eyes study the darkness, unafraid,
And ne'er is the good horse reined.

And the hoof-beats die on the prairie vast,
To the lone wolf's answering wail—
Thus the ghost of the Pony Express goes past
On the grass-grown Overland Trail.

Football

"Wyoming Never Quits" was indeed characteristic of the Cowboy team during the past season. Despite the fact that the season was rather disastrous from the standpoint of the number of points scored, the team fought the heaviest and best teams of the conference from kickoff to final gun. Primarily we look ahead, as prospects are much brighter for next year. Only four Seniors were members of the Varsity squad, and with more material from the Frosh eleven than ever before, the Cowboys will be a bad stumbling block in the championship aspirations of any team in the conference. The entire squad has had much valuable experience, each year more of the state's athletes are coming to Wyoming, the new gym is rapidly taking form, the new coach is assured. Everything is in our favor for the future.

The Frosh

All eyes have been turned toward the Freshman gridiron artists. This year's Frosh team was the best in the history of Wyoming and promises to furnish the material for a team that will make a record for the Yellow and Brown, and considerable trouble for other organizations in the Rocky Mountain Conference. They were strong in all departments of the game. DeForest has a kicking toe that is without peer. O'Bryan and Mabee were two ends next to impossible for the opponents' backs to get around, and fast at getting down the field under punts. In the center of the line Ormsby, Gish, and several other big men were impassable on defense and tore open large holes on the offense.

Only one defeat was recorded against the Yearlings. A lone touchdown by means of a forward pass lost them their first game of the season. With additional experience they stopped every other opponent.

Basketball

The Cowboys displayed an unusually good brand of basketball during the 1924 season and with one or two exceptions were crowded out of a victory by a very few points. No less than four times during the year, the Varsity was several baskets ahead at the end of the first half, only to have the opposition nose them out by a few points near the close of the game.

Next year Wyoming will have a gymnasium equal to that of any other school in the section. Thus the greatest handicap of a small playing floor and lack of practice space will be eliminated. Since all the letter men of this year, with one exception will be in school next year, with the possibilities seen during the High School tournament that will probably be Cowboys, and with a new coach who has a record of winning titles, Wyoming looks optimistically ahead.

Boxing

Once again Wyoming's boxing team brought the Rocky Mountain Boxing Championship to Wyoming. Captain "Okie" Blanchard, three times conference champion fighting in the 125 pound class and "Fat" Garland in the heavyweight division won their bouts in Boulder, and by doing so tied Mines for first place in boxing. A coin was flipped and this time Wyoming called it right, thereby annexing the conference championship. Dalzell, last year's 135 pound conference champion, fought in the 145 pound division. He was forced to give his man ten pounds but fought a game fight, his heavier opponent winning an unpopular decision. Blanchard, the pride of Wyoming, won both his starts in Boulder. The first night he defeated Dewey of C. U. The fight went three rounds to a decision. The next night Okie won again over Kelso of Aggies in the same manner, three rounds to a decision. Garland, Wyoming's battling heavy, won over Much of Mines by a decision. This was Garland's first appearance in conference circles and he made good.

Before the conference meet the Cowboys held two dual meets. The first was a practice meet with the Greeley Teachers. In this meet the Cowboys showed their class. Straley, 115 pounder, lost a decision to his opponent after an extra two minute round. Dalzell in the 135 pound class administered the sleep potion to his man in less than a minute. King, 145 pounder, K. O.-ed his man in one minute. The next bout went the same length of time when the Greeley coach threw a towel into the ring and Mabee, Wyoming's 158 pounder, won his match by a knock out. This establishes a record hard for any team to beat. Three knock outs in less than three minutes. After flooring his man in the first round Mabee lost the next two rounds and the decision. Blanchard and Garland won by forfeit.

At Aggieville, Blanchard, King and Garland won their fights. King injured his hand and was unable to go to the conference meet. All the bouts at the Aggies were won by decision and all the lost bouts were lost in the same manner.

A great amount of credit is due to G. R. McConnell who by his efficient and steady coaching, has enabled the Cowboy battlers to thus bring home the championship. He has rendered this service to the University while conducting his own business and has indeed contributed much toward putting Wyoming "on the map."

Wrestling

Wrestling prospects for Wyoming looked bad at the beginning of the season, but under the careful coaching of the Lynches the aspect of the situation changed greatly. With only three veterans and a limited number of new men, Coach Lynch built up a team, five of whom entered the finals and two, Zaring and La Noue, won championships, thus tying Boulder for second place in the meet.

Scott had no trouble in throwing his Aggie man. "Zybysko" also threw his man in the semi-finals, but was thrown in the finals.

Zaring, 125 pounds, had very little trouble winning any of his bouts. He "knocked out" the Aggie man, threw his man in the semi-finals, and was given the decision in the finals, winning the championship.

Schilt, 135 pounds, easily threw the Aggie contender and drew a bye in the semi-finals. He was thrown in the finals after staying with his man until the second extra period.

Ross, 145 pounds, lost to Aggies in a very fast match. With another year's experience he will probably be listed among the champions.

Wood, 158 pounds, lost by decision in the Aggie meet, but was reinstated. He won by decision in the semi-finals, but lost by decision in the finals after going the two extra periods.

LaNoue, light-heavy-weight, took his match with Aggies by decision. At Boulder "Babe" won his decision in the semi-finals and threw his man in the finals, thus winning the championship.

Russell, heavy-weight, lost by fall at Aggies.

Wyoming loses none of these men this year, and with such a record already established, prospects are indeed bright for a championship team next year.

Track

During the 1923 track season Wyoming participated in two intercollegiate track meets—a dual meet between Wyoming and Greeley Teachers College and a triangular meet between Wyoming, Mines and Colorado Aggies. In these contests Wyoming was indeed fortunate, winning from Greeley by a score of 76 to 54, and taking second in the triangle, the score being: Mines, 87; Wyoming, 36; Aggies 11. The Cowboys failed to place in the Conference meet, however.

Following is a list of the men composing the team and the events in which they participated:

Wittenbraker: placed in shot, high hurdles, high jump.

Blodgett: first in high jump, placed in 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash.

DeKay: first in mile, first in two mile.

Stewart: first in broad jump and helped add points to Wyoming's score in the relay.

Mankin: showed his prowess in the javelin, the discus and the pole vault.

Greth: won first in shot.

Fenex: won first in high hurdles.

Schoonmaker: high point man for Wyoming, has to his credit first in the 100 yard dash, and first in the 220 yard dash, also helped in the relay.

Hanscum: first in half mile, and placed in the two mile.

Taliaferro: first in the 440 yard dash.

The "W" Club

The "W" Club, which is the men's honorary athletic club of the University, is composed of all the men who have been awarded the coveted "W" in any major sport. The members of the club act in official capacities at all athletic contests during the year. The purpose of the organization is to promote cleaner and better athletics in Wyoming, to place athletics on a higher plane and to draw the letter men together into closer bonds.

THE NEW GYMNASIUM

The Future of Wyoming Athletics

A new era in Varsity athletics and physical education and training will open next fall when the athletic, physical education and military departments move into the new gymnasium. For the past several years the University of Wyoming has grown rapidly and now takes her rightful place among the leading universities of the west. In response to the necessity for keeping pace with the growth of the University, construction of the largest and most modern gymnasium in the Rocky Mountain region was begun at Laramie in the summer of 1923.

The new gymnasium will provide ample quarters for the re-organized and enlarged department of physical education and training, the department of military science and the athletic department. The main floor of the gymnasium will provide a seating capacity for more than 4,000 and will be of sufficient size to provide room for three basketball courts. In addition there will also be exercise rooms for both men and women, a large armory and shooting gallery for the the use of the military department, numerous recitation rooms, offices for various departments and a swimming pool 100 by 30 feet. The pool will contain at all times fresh warm water continually purified by the electrical violet ray process.

Altho the new gym will be of great aid to the athletic department in turning out winning teams, the physical education and training department under the supervision of Director John Corbett will be an attraction of much importance. Because of the re-organization and expansion of this department Mr. Corbett will devote the whole of his time to physical education and training. A four year teacher's course in physical education will be developed as soon as the growth of the school will warrant. The new facilities will make it possible for all students to enjoy a varied and liberal program of sports. Corrective gymnastics will contribute their share to the health and development of students.

The Cowboys will start the coming year with a re-organized athletic department headed by coaches of rare ability. William H. ("Lonestar") Dietz, former Carlisle Indian football star, and now a coach of national repute, becomes head football and baseball mentor. Mr. Dietz was for three years assistant coach under the famous "Pop" Warner and since that time has met with phenomenal success wherever he has coached. His record includes two Pacific Coast Championships as head coach at Washington State College and a victory, in 1916, over Brown University, then claimant of the national collegiate championship. He also piloted the famous Mare Island Marine eleven during the war, and later proved himself among the best in America by his successful work as head coach at Perdue. Coach Dietz comes to Wyoming from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute where he again demonstrated his exceptional ability as football and baseball coach. He will have as candidates for varsity football next year a wealth of material. Seventeen out of twenty of this year's first string squad will be eligible for berths on the team. In addition there will be available a large number of men (including nine all-state stars) from this year's Freshman squad. The 1924 eleven will probably be one of the heaviest in the history of the school.

Stewart M. Clark joins the Cowboys as head basketball coach and associate football coach. Mr. Clark is well known throughout the state for his record as coach of basketball and football at Laramie High School. In his collegiate days in Illinois Mr. Clark was known as a star athlete and his work as a coach won him much attention in the east. While at Carthage High School, for instance, his team won the Illinois High School football championship for three consecutive years. Mr. Clark also has a name in the east for being a shrewd observer and critic of both basketball and football, and as a student of the latter he will be of particular value as assistant to Coach Dietz, with whom he will work during the football season.

This year's entire basketball squad will be eligible to play next year and in addition there will be a wealth of promising material from the Freshman and other classes.

Baseball and track will be greatly benefited next year by the use of the armory wing of the gym. The floor will be of dirt and will be large enough to permit spring athletic teams to start working out a full month earlier than formerly.

Boxing and wrestling will also thrive by reason of the new building.

A conference baseball nine added next year with golf and tennis teams will bring the number of Cowboy aggregations competing in Rocky Mountain Conference athletics to a total of eight.

Intra-Mural Basketball

Kappa Sigma emerged as intra-mural basketball champions after one of the closest and most exciting intra-mural series which has been seen on this campus. A total of seven teams were entered and were gradually eliminated by two losses, until the finals were played between Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Sigma, and the Independents. It was necessary for the two fraternity teams to play two games to determine the championship. Kappa Sigma was victorious by the exceedingly close score of 17 to 18. The winning team played a fast brand of basketball throughout and showed themselves strong in every department of the game.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the Intra-Mural Baseball Championship for 1923, having the highest percentage among the teams representing each of the Fraternities and also the Preps, Independents, and Vocational students. Each team played every other team entered in the series and there were many close and well played games.

Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Sigma, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon proved to be the runners up. Kappa Sigma defeated A. T. O. only to lose to the S. A. E.'s who thus became champions. The pennant was awarded by the Physical Education Department of the University.

It was decided to discontinue the Intra-Mural Baseball series for 1924.

Hockey

The game of hockey was introduced at the University of Wyoming for the first time this fall. It created a great deal of interest and there were a large number of girls who took part in the games. The hockey tournament was run off as a class competition since each of the four classes had enough aspirants to form a team. The Freshmen carried off the hockey honors. Hockey was new to most of the girls and for that reason the game was more or less a rough one, but by next year Wyoming girls will play a real finished game.

Basketball

Of all the athletic activities for women, basketball undoubtedly aroused the most interest. During the preliminary training and practice a color tournament was held. Later in the season the regular class teams competed for honors. The games were played off as preliminaries to the varsity encounters. The Sophomores after some hot competition from the Juniors and Freshmen were victorious. The final games of the season were played as girls intra-murals. The Independents were the winners of this tournament.

W. A. A.

The Women's Athletic Association of the University of Wyoming was formally organized in the spring of 1923. Prior to this time the women at the University had been interested in athletics, but lacked an organization. W. A. A. has proved very successful on the campus and this year has secured recognition in Athletic Conference of American College Women, the national organization. The women were fortunate in being able to send a delegate to the National Conference at the University of California at Berkley.

The Association is governed by a standardized point system. Awards are given for certain numbers of points. A brown coat sweater with a yellow "W" enclosed in a yellow circle is the final and most coveted award. Some of the activities for which points are given are baseball, hockey, track, tennis and dancing. It is hoped that in the near future, after the completion of the new gym, swimming may be added to the list.

The purpose of the organization is to encourage women's athletics and to promote health, democracy and sportsmanship in the student body.

Baseball

Baseball was made a major sport for the first time this spring. Practices were scheduled every night from four to five during the spring term until the regular class games were played. Here again the Freshmen showed their superiority by defeating both the Sophomore and Junior-Senior teams.

Track

Track meets have been held for two successive years and some unusual records have been made. The track events consisted of 100 and 50-yard dashes, high-jump, running and standing broad-jump, shot-put, baseball and basketball throw, sixty-yard low hurdles and the relay. This year the Freshmen class won the meet.

THE CHANGED HILLS

The hills on which the cattle grazed
Are strange today unto my eyes;
The plough has severed, as a sword,
All the appealing, olden ties;
The apple trees are blossoming—
I see their promise gleaming there;
And smell their perfume, heavy, sweet,
Where once the wild sage filled the air.

The hills on which the cattle grazed
Were once the battle-grounds where men,
Far from the haunts of womankind,
Won, or were beaten—life throbbed then
With meanings all unknown today.
Where once the roundup camp-fire blazed,
The ranch light shines like star upon
The hills on which the cattle grazed.

The Branding Iron, official paper of the A. S. U. W., has inaugurated a new policy during the past two years. The editors have felt that a college paper such as the Branding Iron has three purposes—a training school for students interested in journalism, a publicity organ for the University, and a means of disseminating campus news. The first of these purposes has been especially stressed this year. Co-operative learning has been the motto of the entire staff from lordly editor to down-trodden proof reader.

MEN IN THE ROUGH

Men in the rough—on the trails all new-broken—
Those are the friends we remember with tears;
Few are the words that such comrades have spoken—
Deeds are their tributes that last through the years.

Men in the rough—sons of prairie and mountain—
Children of nature, warm-hearted, clear-eyed;
Friendship with them is a never-sealed fountain;
Strangers are they to the altars of pride.

Men in the rough—curt of speech to their fellows—
Ready in everything, save to deceive;
Theirs are the friendships that time only mellows,
And death cannot sever the bonds that they weave.

Women's Debate

Tryouts for places in the women's debate seminar class were held in November. Those successful in making the class were Erma Stevens, Marion Field, Hazel Bowman, Sholie Richards, Nancy Jones, Lois Haworth, Ida Crowe, Frances Shier, Mildred Callahan and Freda Connor.

The question debated was, "Resolved that the amendement to the constitution as proposed by the National Women's Party should be adopted." The amendment reads,"Men and women shall have equal rights in the United States and every place subject to its jurisdiction."

The teams as chosen were: Affirmative, Erma Stevens (Captain), Frances Shier, and Marion Field. Negative, Sholie Richards, (Captain), Hazel Bowman, and Ida Crowe.

These teams met Greeley Teachers College in a dual debate and won both sides of the question. The negative team met Colorado Woman's College at Denver and won a unanimous decision.

This marked the eighteenth consecutive victory for Wyoming, and gave to the women's teams a record of three years without defeat.

Men's Debate

Wyoming started on her second succesful year of debating in November, when tryouts were held for places in the debate seminar classes. Those successful in making the class were: Ralph Conwell, Harold Gilbert, Wesley Kerper, Elmore Keys, Harry Astin, Albert Kinghorn, Elmer Kissack, Daniel McCarthy, James McClintock, and Herbert Woodman.

The question used by the men's teams was, "Resolved that the United States should enter the World Court under the Harding Reservations." The teams as finally chosen were as follows: Affirmative—Herbert Woodman (Captain), James McClintock, and Elmer Kissack. Negative—Ralph Conwell, (Captain), Harold Gilbert, and Wilmer Stevens. These teams debated Colorado Teachers College in a dual debate, winning both decisions.

The Wyoming-Utah-Colorado triangle debate was held February 29th, and March 1st. On February 29th, Wyoming's negative team was defeated by Colorado University at Boulder. The next night, March 1st, Wyoming won a two to one decision from the Utah U. team, making Wyoming's record nineteen victories in twenty contests with eighteen consecutive victories. In this triangle Ralph Conwell and Herbert Woodman upheld the affirmative and Elmer Kissack and Wilmer Stevens the negative.

Western Debate Trip

Under the influence of Dr. Crane, it became possible for Wyoming to send a debate team on a tour of the North-West. This team consisted of Ralph Conwell and Herbert Woodman, who were accompanied on the trip by Coach Higgins. Debates were held with sixteen of the Northern and Western Universities, resulting in thirteen victories for Wyoming. The colleges to whom Wyoming lost were, Montana State College at Bozeman, University of Southern California at Los Angeles, and the University of British Columbia at Vancouver. Following is a schedule of the debates and the decisions:

Wyoming	(2)	University of Montana	(1)
Wyoming	(0)	Montana State College	(1) one judge.
Wyoming	(2)	Gooding College, Idaho	(1)
Wyoming	(3)	College of Idaho, Caldwell	(0)
Wyoming	(2)	Whitman College, Walla Walla	(1)
Wyoming	(2)	College of Puget Sound, Tacoma	(1)
Wyoming	(1)	University of British Columbia	(2)
Wyoming	(3)	Pacific University	(0)
Wyoming	(3)	Linfield College, McMinnville	(0)
Wyoming	(2)	Williamette College, Salem	(1)
Wyoming	(3)	University of Nevada	(0)

Wyoming	(1)	University of Southern California	(2)
Wyoming	(3)	Pomona College	(0)
Wyoming	(3)	California Institute of Technology	(0)
Wyoming	(3)	Brigham Young University	(0)

This trip marked the culmination of two years successful debating for Wyoming, and made for her a record which has never been equalled. In two years Wyoming has participated in thirty-six debates winning thirty-two of them. These victories have been won by men's and women's teams alike, on both sides of several questions.

The Wyoming Players

Olivette Mitsch, T. Jay Kelley, Helen Coleman, Loy Ripley, Anne Lawler, Wesley Kerper, Ted O'Melia, Crete Wood, Monte Warner, Manager.

Among the many things sponsored by the A. S. U. W., during the past year was the trip of the Wyoming Players over the state during the Christmas holidays. The show itself, consisting of five acts, was first given in the University Auditorium on December 11th, for the approval of the entire student body and the faculty. It was greeted with genuine applause, and so, on December 17th, the Wyoming Players started on their journey.

The tour included the following towns: Wheatland, Glenrock, Casper, Lander, Riverton, Worland, Thermopolis, Basin, Greybull, Cody, Powell, Sheridan, Buffalo, Gillette and Newcastle.

The most interesting features of the trip, were the many happy meetings with former members and alumni of the University of Wyoming. The show was well received at all points, and many of the towns wished to re-book for next year. All members of the cast were confident that through such an undertaking, the University had accomplished ends which could not have been obtained otherwise. Should a similar trip take place next year, we are sure that the members of the company would not be questioned as one of the group was, in Shoshoni: "Oh—the University. Le's see—that's in Laramie, I believe, isn't it?"

"Vedauwoo"

In the early part of June the pageant "Vedauwoo" is to be given. It was written and directed by Mrs. Maybelle L. DeKay and is the most elaborate pageant that has ever been attempted by the University. East of Laramie in the Sherman Hills is a natural ampitheater especially adapted to the presentation of this production.

The pageans presents the history of Wyoming in a series of allegorical episodes, beginning with the formation of the natural phenomena of Wyoming and carrying the story on down to the present time. The theme deals with the wooing of Wyoming by Vedauwoo, Earthborn. The first episode is a fanciful conception of the creation of Wyoming. Wyariel, with the advice of the Voice of the Tetons builds the spirit of Wyoming, taking her inspiration from the Hills, Plains, Paintbrush and the others. Vedauwoo is fascinated by her and starts to make himself worthy of her approval.

In the second episode Vedauwoo learns his first lesson from the Indians. The imagery and beauty of their beliefs and legends give him a means of expressing himself, but like the Indians he is yet a primitive man. The coming of the Pioneer in episode two shows to Vedauwoo the value of knowledge and an outlook toward even higher accomplishments. But he still lacks a great deal. In episode three he gains self confidence from Wyoming's special creation, the Cowboy. The University episode brings the knowledge he has needed. However, he does not yet come up to Wyoming's demands, and it is only when the final episode, that of the Seasons, teaches him to appreciate not only his own worth, but the power of Nature, that he is considered really worthy of Wyoming.

The main characters, Wyoming, Vedauwoo, and Wyariel are played by Crete Wood, Harold Gilbert, and Helen Coleman.

Prof. George E. Knapp . . . . . Director
Miss Mabel Babington . . . . . Accompanist

The University Chorus, directed by Professor George E. Knapp, has done steady work throughout the year. The most important appearance of the Chorus was the presentation of "The Messiah" early in December. Miss Olivette Mitsch and Mr. Ivar Skougaard assisted as soloists at this time. The Chorus has also entertained the entire student body in assembly at various times. Plans at present include the Chorus in the program of Commencement Week.

The band was the chief item of entertainment at two assemblies during the year and was received with heartiest applause and appreciation.

Chicago International Livestock Judging

For the first time in its history the University of Wyoming was represented in an International stock judging contest. Nineteen teams from the United States and Canada competed. Twelve classes of cattle, sheep, hogs, and horses were judged and reasons given for the judgment. Wyoming placed thirteenth and stood above such schools as Perdue, Michigan, Penn State, Colorado, Manitoba and North Dakota. The contest was won by Kansas with Ontario second. The first fourteen teams were within two hundred points of each other out of a possible perfect score of five thousand points.

This livestock judging contest is held annually in January and is considered preparatory to the Kansas City Royal and Chicago International contests, which are held the same calendar year.

Although Wyoming's team was fourth it showed a twenty-five per cent improvement over last year's team and made a score higher than last year's winning score. The schools represented this year were Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Wyoming.

OUT AMONG THE BIG THINGS

Out among the big things—
    The mountains and the plains
An hour ain't important,
    Nor are the hour's gains;
The feller in the city
    Is hurried night and day,
But out among the big things
    He learns the calmer way.

Out among the big things—
    The skies that never end—
To lose a day ain't nothin',
    The days are here to spend;
So why not give 'em freely,
    Enjoyin' as we go?
I somehow can't help thinkin'
    The good Lord means life so.

Out among the big things—
    The heights that gleam afar—
A feller gets to wonder
    What means each distant star;
He may not get an answer,
    But somehow, every night
He feels, among the big things,
    That everything's all right.

ROCK SPRINGS

State Champions

Rock Springs, champions of "A" class, won the interscholastic basketball championship from Laramie, champions of "B" class, on the last night of the tournament by a score of 21 to 12. The Rock Springs players were tall and rangy, and very adept at long shot style of play. Their size was the biggest factor in their victory, enabling them to play much above their opponents' heads. Outsen and Jamieson were the two highest men, both in stature and number of points scored. Their guards were fast and clever and were effective in breaking up the opposing offense. Rock Springs has for a number of years been a serious contender for the championship and was able this year to go through the tournament. Rock Springs also placed two men on the first and second all-state teams.

Rock Springs participated in the inter-mountain tournament at Salt Lake City and made a very creditable showing, tieing for third place. They lost their first game at the National tourney at Chicago, but won their first contest in the consolation tourney and were defeated by the narrow margin of one point in their second contest.

Laramie, last year's champions and winners of the "B" class this year, went through the tourney with only one defeat. George and Pierce were the two brightest lights on the Laramie aggregation. George was the only man on the Laramie team who was large enough to effectively cope with Rock Springs, and was largely responsible for holding them down to their comparatively small score. Pierce was the best man at playing the floor and cornered a large percentage of Laramie's points. Pierce's brilliant work earned him a berth on the all-state team. Laramie's short pass work and tight defense was the class of their division, and enabled them to go through the lightweight division without a defeat.

Laramie, with the lightest team in the inter-mountain tourney, was the hit of the tournament and tied for second place.

ONLY A BRONCO

I'm only a bronco, an unruly bronco,
A range-ridden bronco, wild, scrubby and tough!
I'm bridled and saddled at daylight and straddled,
I'm larruped and quirted and used mighty rough!
They slam and abuse me, they daily misuse me,
And when on the roundup I get little care!
I'm jest a cow-pony, a pinto, and bony,
But out on the ranges I do my full share!

I ain't no prize beauty, but I know my duty!
I'm wise to the rope and the tricks of the trade!
You bet I'm no quitter! I'll hold any critter
That you flip a rope on, for I ain't afraid!
No stall ever held me; they've always corraled me,
I stand in the sun and the mud and the rain,
No roof to protect me, and though they neglect me,
I'm only a bronco, and never complain!

Although you may doubt me, they can't do without me,
In spite of the fact that my temper ain't mild.
I'm lively at pitchin', and always am itchin'
To see the wild rider upon me get piled!
They never half-feed me, for they're sure to need me
Before I have browsed on the grass to my fill.
And though they deny me good care, they swear by me,
And brag of my toughness and usefulness still.

I'm only a bronco, an ornery bronco,
A range-ridden bronco with no pedigree!
I'm jest a cow-pony, a pinto, and bony!
But no hawss is wiser to range-tricks than me!
No stall ever held me, they've always corraled me;
I'm not of the breed of which hawss-raisers sing;
I'm long-haired and shaggy, tough-looking and scraggy!
I'm only a bronco—jest one of the string!

FRATERNITIES

THE PLAINSMEN

Men of the older, gentler soil,
Loving the things that their fathers wrought—
Worn old fields of their fathers' toil,
Scarred old hills where their fathers fought—
Loving their land for each ancient trace,
Like a mother dear for her wrinkled face,
Such as they never can understand
The way we have loved you, young, young land!

When the last free trail is a prim, fenced lane
And our graves grow weeds through forgetful Mays,
Richer and statlier then you'll reign,
Mother of men whom the world will praise.
And your sons will love you and sigh for you,
Labor and battle and die for you,
But never the fondest will understand
The way we have loved you, young, young land!

SORORITIES

THE COWGIRL

She ain't inclined to lots of things
That Eastern gals can do up brown!
She don't wear jewelry and rings,
Like them swell gals that live in town.
Her cheeks are tanned an olive tint
That shows the roses hidin' there,
Her eyes are brown, there's a hint
Of midnight in her wavin' hair.

She don't go in for fancy hats,
A wide brimmed Stetson is her pet.
She has no use for puffs and rats,
And harem skirts would make her fret.
She wears a 'kerchief 'round her neck,
At breaking broncs she shows her sand;
And at a round-up she's on deck,
And twirls a rope with practiced hand!

She doesn't know a thing about
Them motor cars that buzz and whirr;
But when she goes a ridin' out,
A tough cowpony pleases her.
Her hands are tanned to match her cheeks,
Her smile will start your heart a-whirl
And when she looks at you and speaks,
You love this rosy, wild cowgirl!

The Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society was founded at the University of Maine in 1897 by men who saw the need of an honor society formed on broader lines than any then in existence. Its purpose is to promote scholarship by recognizing achievement in any line of scholarly endeavor and its members are elected from any college of the University. Election of student members is made on a basis of accomplishment as indicated by grades and only those are admitted to membership who have achieved an honor record in a four-year curriculum, have been at least one year in residence at the University of Wyoming and who stand within the first fourth of the graduating class. There are at present thirty-six chapters of Phi Kappa Phi in universities and colleges of the United States.

Theta Alpha Phi is a national dramatic honorary fraternity, whose object is three-fold: To cultivate appreciation of drama, to further interest in its study, and to develop talent along dramatic lines. Last year the club produced two plays, "A Successful Calamity" and "His Majesty Bunker Bean," the proceeds of which were given to the A. S. U. W.

This year the club did not give a play, but a troupe of Theta Alpha Phi members and several aspirants made a two weeks' tour of the state in "Suppressed Desires" and "The Robbery." A series of one-act plays have been planned for this spring under Theta Alpha Phi direction. "Sham," "Wurzel Flummery" and "The Pot Boiler" have already been given.

Theta Alpha Phi members will help in the production of the Wyoming pageant, which is to be given in June.

The Executive Committee of the Associated Students of the University of Wyoming has met many difficult problems this year. The heavy financial burden which it assumed has been minimized to a marked degree with the aid of Student Manager Schlosser and Faculty Advisors Dr. Knight and Major Daly. Athletics, intercollegiate debates, high scholarship, and good fellowship, have been promoted by this committee to push Wyoming on to the high rank which she deserves.

The A. S. U. W. has taken its part in the activities of High School Week and in the social life of the University, giving dances, a carnival, and stunt night, which have all proven very successful.

This organization was first known on the campus in the spring of 1921 as the Women's League. In the spring of 1923 this was changed to what is now known as the "Women's Self-Government Association." The object of the organization is to regulate all matters pertaining to the student life of its members which do not fall under the jurisdiction of the faculty or Associated Students of the University of Wyoming; to further in every way the spirit of unity among the women of the University; to increase their sense of responsibility towards each other; and to be a medium by which the social standards of the University may be made and kept high. The Executive Board is made up of the officers, a representative from each girls' organization in so far as possible, and, ex-officio, the Dean of Women.

Prior to the formation of the Club the Independents were very active, giving two dances and a smoker, and holding meetings semi-monthly. About the middle of February the Independent Club house, at 269 North Sixth Street, was occupied. February 25 the Club was formally organized and initiation was held. The Club now has thirty-seven members.

One of the first units over the top was commanded by a Wyoming captain, who led his men with the famous "Powder River," that became the battle cry of the American. That's what the University of Wyoming is doing—"going over the top." Football warriors do not need to give their own battle cry—the bleachers give it for them. The purpose of the Pep Club is to see that every man and woman of the University is out at every contest to help yell "Powder River" and, in general, support the teams. Membership is honorary and by election.

Le Cercle Francais is an honorary language organization, formed for the purpose of promoting the study of the French language and stimulating interest in French life and customs.

The meetings are held once a month, at which time some entertainment is usually furnished. Several short plays presented by the members have added much to the enjoyment and value of the organization. All conversation is carried on in French, thus giving the members an opportunity to acquire fluency in the use of the French language.

With the steady advance of material progress during the present age, the various lines of engineering have been increasingly called upon to respond to new and exacting demands. This stimulus has led to a bewildering wealth of projects and inventions. The student possesses but little leisure to gain a suitable view of these achievements as they occur. The Engineering Society was founded to supply this need, to furnish the basis for a spirit of solidarity and to provide an occasional hour of relaxation. Moving picture films have been regularly employed to visualize technological processes and products and prominent educators and engineers have been secured to deliver helpful addresses. The object has been largely to maintain contact with professional activities in the industrial world while at the same time the student undergoes his four years of academic training.

The Ag Club has had a very successful year. It backed the Stock Judging Teams, both morally and financially. Two dances were given—the 16th of January a "Barn Dance" in the Gym; the other the 16th of May at the Stock Farm.

Prominent ranchers of the state, government experts and other prominent men in rural affairs are asked to address the bi-monthly meetings. One of the regular meetings was a banquet given at the Connor hotel in honor of the Chicago judging team.

All members of the law faculty, law students and pre-legal students are eligible. Frequent meetings are held for Moot Court practice, arguing cases and reading of papers on legal subjects. Members of the Laramie Bar and other lawyers address the club. Under the inspiration of its founder and E. F. Albertsworth the Club prospered in the first year. In the present year, with Dean Driscoll's leadership, the Club has returned to its pristine glory and promises to remain one of the most worth-while of the departmental clubs.

After a year of comparative inactivity, the Y. M. C. A. again became one of the most active organizations on the campus. The "Y" was fortunate in securing for secretary, Mr. Ronald Fischer of De Pauw, and much credit for the liveliness of the organization is due to him. The Freshmen became acquainted with the "Y" registration day through the "W" book, better known as the "Freshman Bible." The "Stag-Do," which is the initiation of the "Frosh" was conducted by the Association. The annual student directory was issued early in the year by the Y. M. C. A. The "Father and Son" banquet, the Saturday evening parties, the Hallowe'en party, and many other entertainments were backed by the help of the Association.

The Y. W. C. A. has just passed what it considers the most successful year it has had in its history on this campus. The organization has reached more girls, it has drawn closer to its Advisory Board.

The customary functions of the year were carried out successfully—the Big Sister Movement, the Freshman Frolic, a Valentine Tea, social gatherings with the Advisory Board, and its regular weekly meetings.

Recently the Y. W. decided to join hands with the Y. M. The two organizations feel that in a joint union they can reach more students, widen their radius of service, and work more efficiently.

Eta Chapter of Kappa Phi was established at Wyoming in 1919. Its purpose is to unite Methodist girls into fellowship and service, and to promote student welfare at the University. The meetings are held once every two weeks for the discussion of topics which are of interest to the girls, and for study of the different departments of the Church. Several social affairs have been held during the year, all of which were a success.

The Newman Club is an organization of Catholic students of the University. Its objects are the promotion of the University and student welfare. Any Catholic student may be a member. Others wishing to be affiliated may be voted in.

Newman Clubs were first formed by Cardinal John Henry Newman at Oxford and Cambridge Universities, England. The many Catholic Clubs in American Universities soon adopted the characteristics of these English Clubs and subsequently named them after the founder.

The purpose of the Young Republicans' Clubs of the colleges of the United States is to enlist the interest of college men and women in better politics. Recent developments which tend to shatter faith in government should convince the serious thinking college student that he has a great opportunity for service to his country in this direction. The Young Republican's Club of the University of Wyoming hopes to stimulate interest in national issues, not in local party squabbles. The local order is a branch of the national organization represented at most of the foremost colleges of the land.

The Junior Prom

With the flaming rays of the Aurora Borealis shimmering through a vast wilderness of ice and snow beneath a roof of eternal frozen icicles and closed in by walls of impenetrable whiteness, the Junior Prom was easily the outstanding social event of the year. Entering through the small, and rounded door of an igloo, the guests were greeted by the most picturesque and unusual scene which the old Gym has ever presented. A mass of solid white, broken only by the sparkle of the snow, the innumerable icicles hanging from the ceiling, and the Aurora Borealis, emanating in ever-changing colors, from "25" as a center. Programs in white leather, refreshments of white ice cream and cakes, combined with the frigid decorations to furnish a marvellous contrast to the varied colored gowns of the ladies and the jet black attire of the men.

The 49'ers Ball

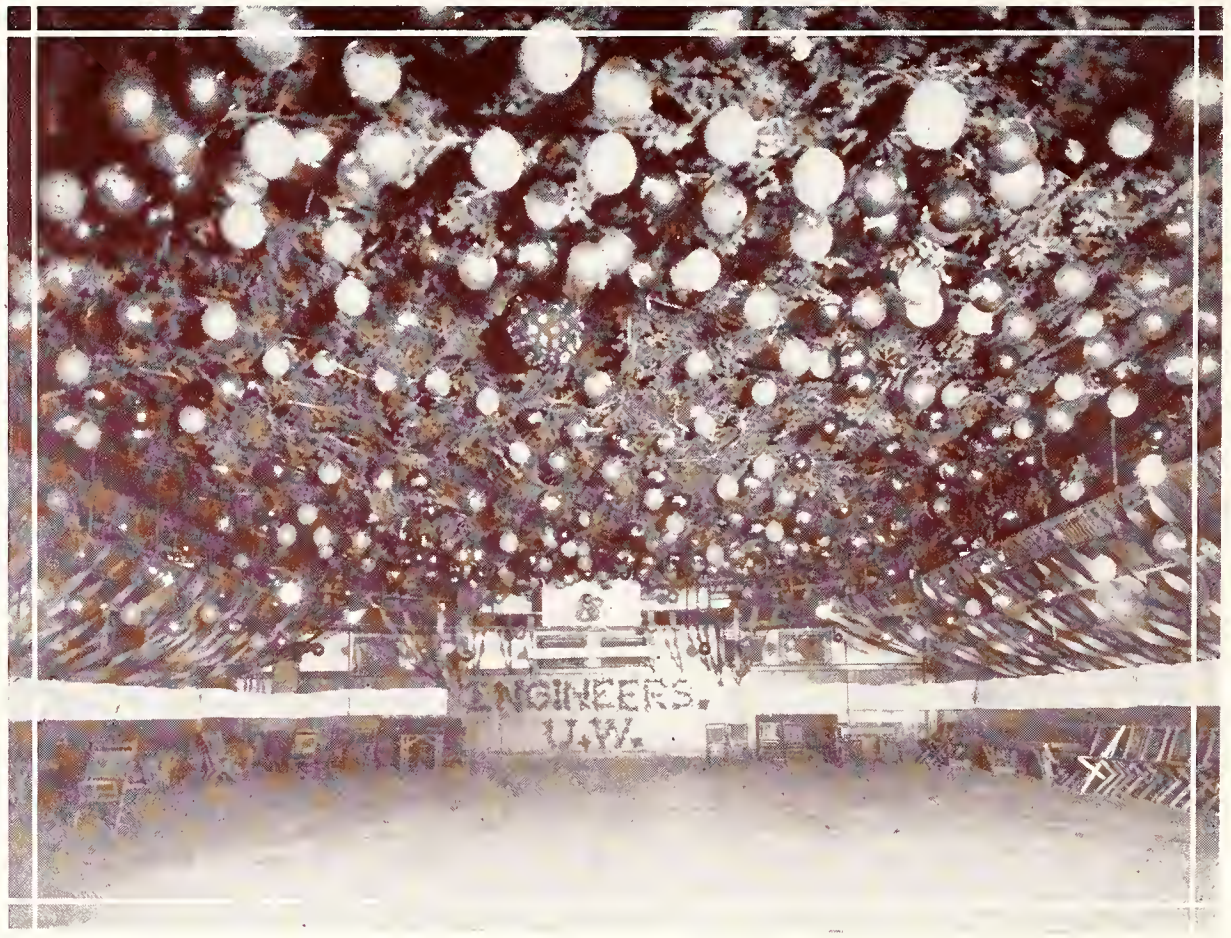
Once each year Wyoming harkens back to her early days and gives full play to the instincts and desires which the Cowboys have inherited from the past. In the atmosphere of a bar room of the days of '49 reeking with the smoke of gun powder, bordered with tables where men and women play games of chance, crowded with cowboys and cowgirls, miners and half-breeds, hilariously dancing to the strains of music which eminate from the ancient stage coach, the 49'ers is a party as unique as it is picturesque.

True, the bar serves nothing but cider, the green-backs which circulate so freely are fake, the terrible gun play is with harmless blanks. Nevertheless, the roulette wheel turns with the same fascination and the foot embraces the bar rail with the same gusto as in the ne'er forgotten days of '49.

The Co-Ed Ball

As a culmination to many coy and bashful requests for various and sundry sorts of men's wearing apparel there appeared on the campus one evening, an entirely new group of dashing males. Perhaps they were wearing French heels, perhaps their caps bulged a bit, perhaps their steps were somewhat petite, but nevertheless they were most assuredly men, for they were seen to walk boldly to the dorms and sorority houses, ask for some co-ed and proceed on what were unmistakably dates for a dance. It is even rumored that some of these blasé lads were seen upstairs in the residences of the young ladies but the rumor is unsubstantiated and is believed to be fallacious.

Spectators at the party which these couples attended noted that there was something peculiar about a dance where the men even appeared in football outfits and where they seemed to lead with difficulty and to emulate cave men at only certain times rather than continually as was their wont. Upon inquiry they found that it was the annual Co-Ed ball which they were witnessing and that the gallant males would appear in skirts and—all the rest, on the following morning.



The Engineers' Ball

The Engineers, deigning any such thing as evening clothes, put on a ball which had every other requisite of a formal and which will not be forgotten at Wyoming for some time to come. The Gym was clothed in what was indeed a novel and pleasing attire. A ceiling of pine boughs from which hung literally hundreds of baloons of every imagineable color was illuminated by spot lights playing from the corners. In the center revolved a huge ball covered with mirrors which formed a fantastic and ever changing pattern of light upon the floor. The crowd was one of the largest which attended a social function during the year, and was also one of the most enthusiastic in its comments, "The Engin-ears have shaggy beards—but they throw a mean party."

HUMOR AND FEATURES

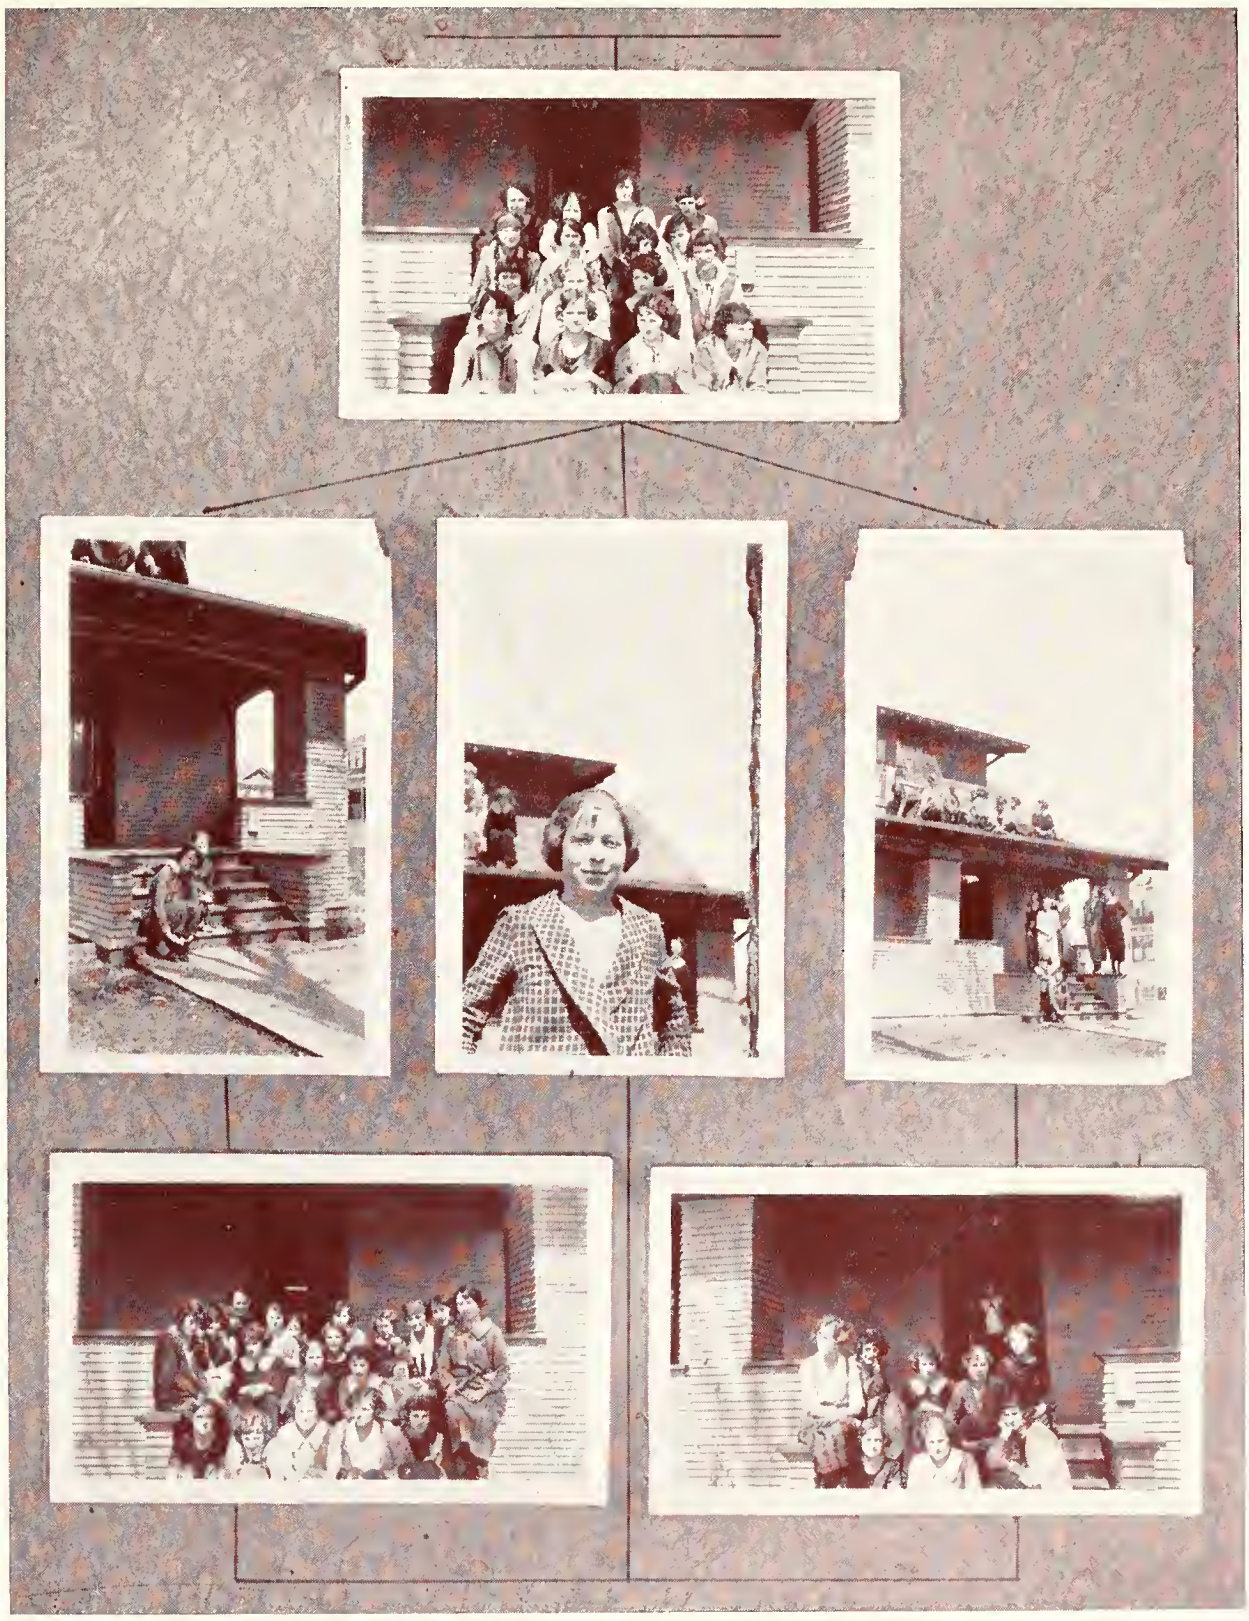
JAMES O'BRIEN, EDITOR

Pie Beta Fie

Found in Texaco, April 32, 1687.
Wyoming "Enfant" Chapter got by the faculty in 1910.

Colors: Near Beer and Slate. Flowers: "Your Nose Knows."

The arrow was left to them by Cupid himself. You might find out for yourself some day. Some of them are very prominent in different ways. They have a nice large porch and not too much lights. They have enjoyed very successful years in the past and their favorite song is "Oh, do you remember—etc." Are very popular with others and deserve honorable mention for staying in school. Their ritual was written by each of their local chapters and voted on a la mode. They have an orchestra and were the first to re-enact the Covered Wagon.



Delta Delta Delta

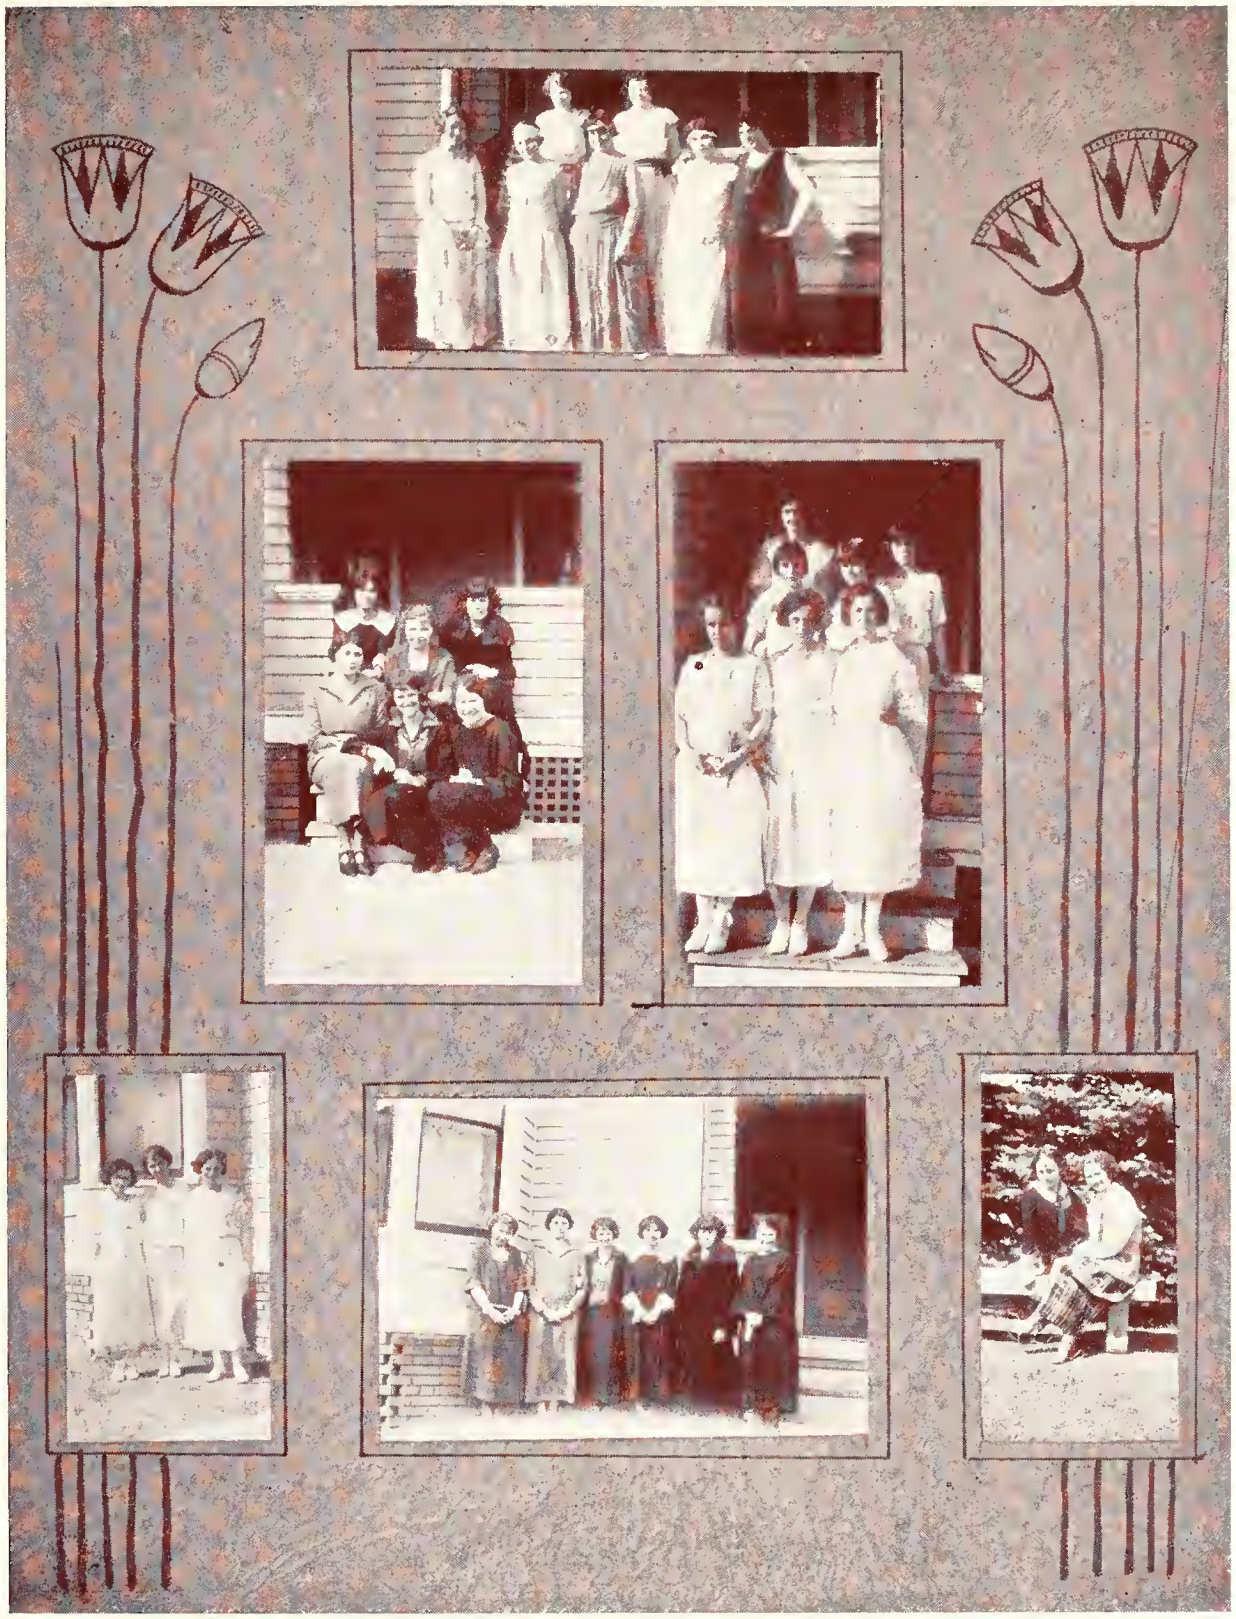
(They Stutter)

First noticed in Boston on Thanksgiving, 1888.

They Eata Chapter mailed to Laramie February 13, 1913.

Colors: Tin foil, Gloco and Ice Cream. Flower: Pain—sy.

Their pin was handed down to them from the ancient Egyptians and stands for the three wise brethren. (Of course the brethren embrace the sisters, etc.) They are very much inclined to be the eternal feminine ? ? By the way, have you ever noticed their lawn. Are leaders in the Kill Klub and what not. They know how to keep that school-girl complexion without preserving it in alcohol. Their Freshmen are all the name implies and are very noticeable. Recently voted to expell all masculine members, but this is still pending.



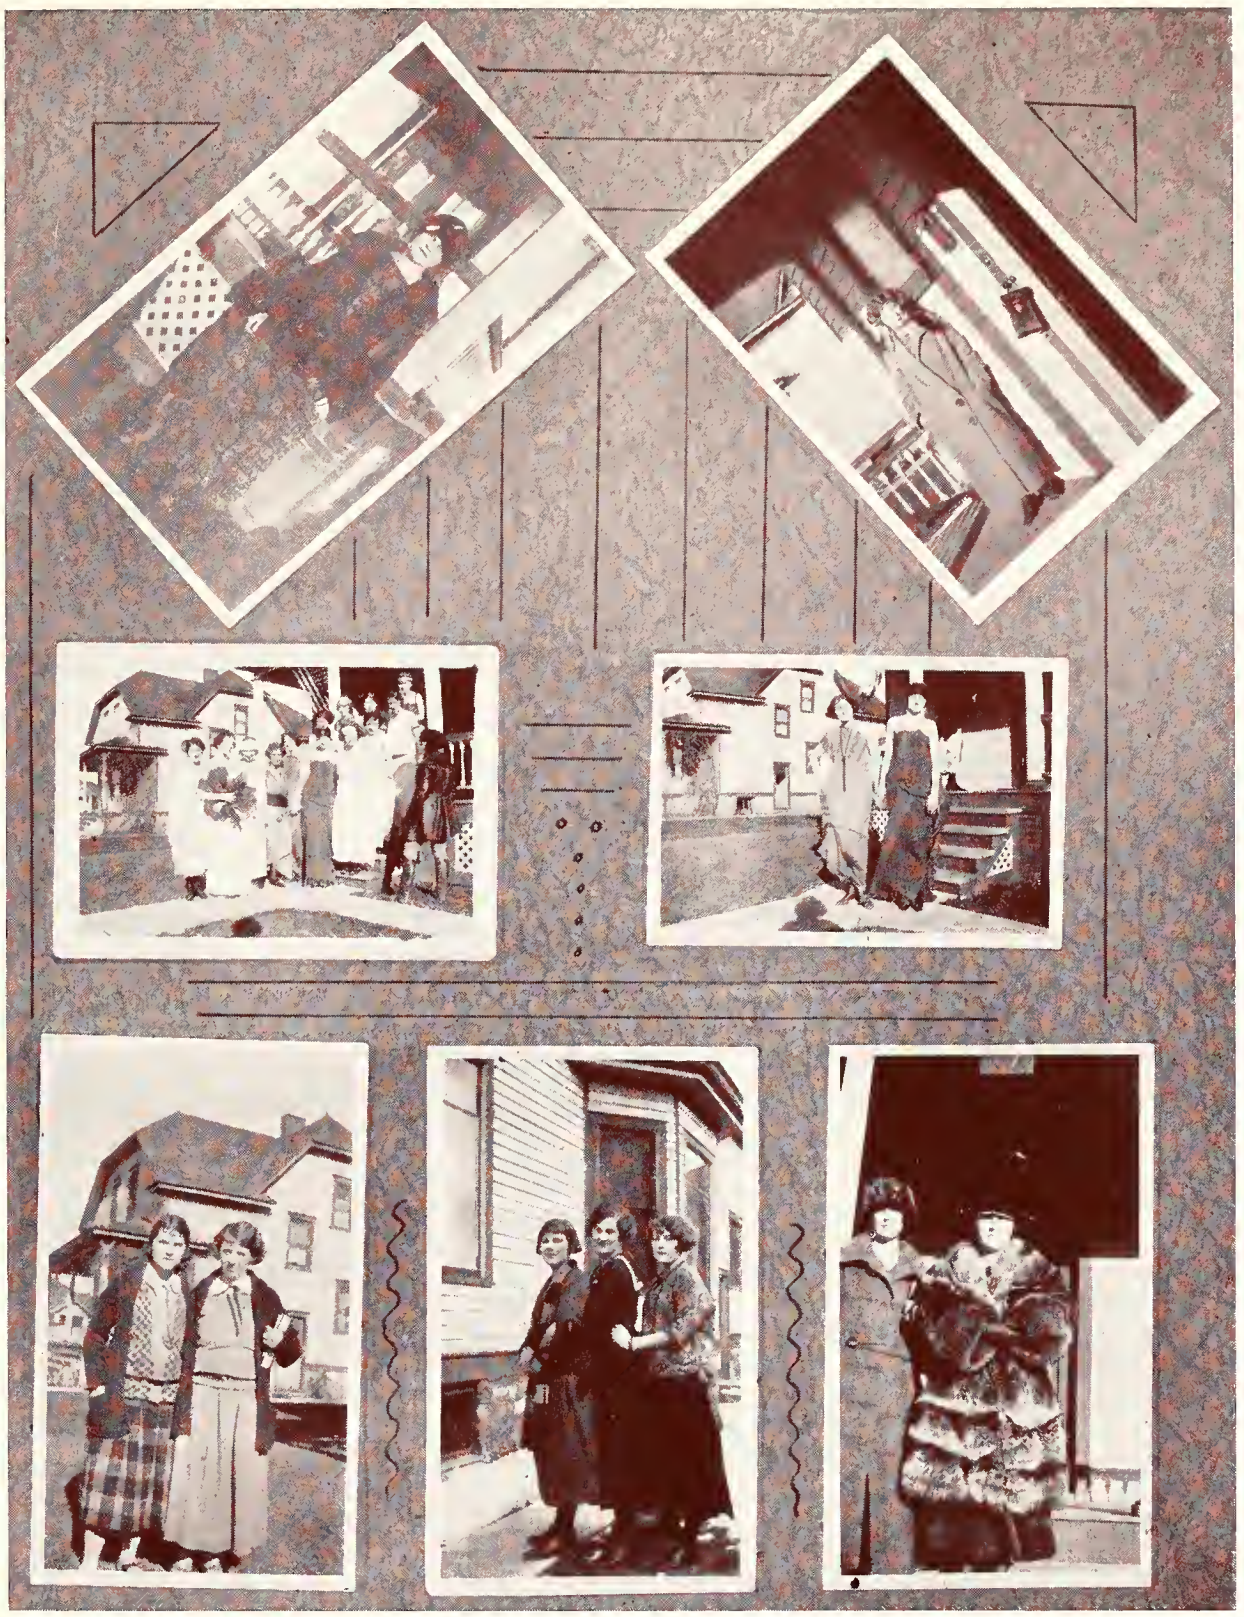
Cap'a Del'a

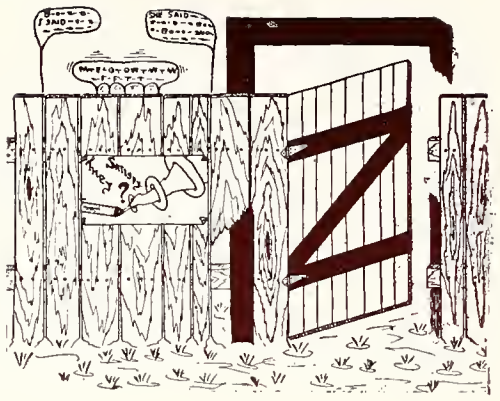
Firmly established in Va. St. Ab-Normal, Oct. 23, 1987.
Row Boat Chapter evolved May 15, 1914 (War in Europe same year).

Colors: Porcelain and Ripe Olives. Flower: White Hose.

This diamond was originally discovered in Africa and latter rescued through the kind help of the Latter Day Saints. The local chapter extends their thanks. These girls live near Cheyenne (they do too) but have contemplated moving to the city next year. They are especially noted for the number of shoes worn out per annum. They do not think that Motor Age and the Progressive Grocer are justified in refusing corset ads. Of course they are entitled to their opinion. S-s- sh, another secret they begged us to keep quiet, is that they are honor students in Phys. Ed. They have the only K. D. chapter in town but are not conceited therefrom.

—Adv.





Gambl's Hatea

One of our local products on November 9, 1920.

Colors: Salad Dressing and Snow. Flower: Kinda Hazy.

The pin was kept secret for many, many years and finally appeared on the campus in its present shape. (No, Oscar, it was none the worse for wear and tear.) They have a large house in spite of their proximity to town. Question: Why do the Wear-Longer Slate shingles on their roof make us think of the loved ones at home? They keep a complete directory of all dates and are not fooled a second time. Yes, their garden is all that can be expected of a garden at this time of the year. Why they wear——wel, none of your business. It is true that they won the beauty contest this year with the help of numerous drug stores. "Be patient, be kind, and be still," is rumored to be their latest motto. Home of Sigma Pie and T. O. D.

Judge—What brought you here?
Buddy—Two policemen.
Judge—Drunk I suppose?
Buddy—Yes, both of them.

* * * * *

Banta—I had an awful fright last night.
Puss—Yes, I saw her.

* * * * *

White (producing roll)—What, hic, can I get for this?
Teller—Four per cent.
White (handing over roll)—Good, wrap up the whole works.

* * * * *

Prof. Himbert—That is the fourth time you have looked at Smith's paper, stop it!
Engstrom—Yes, but Smith is such a poor writer.

* * * * *

IN C. E.

O'Bie—Have you any thumb tacks?
Wood—No, but I have some finger nails.

MC CLINTOCK GETS A NEW CAR

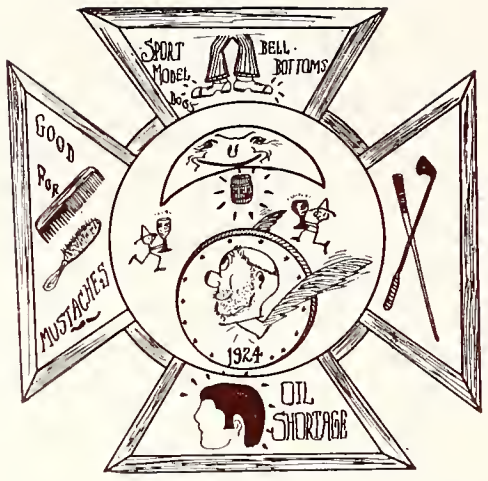
On the seat in back of me—
I took a bump at fifty-five,
And rode on Ruthlessly.

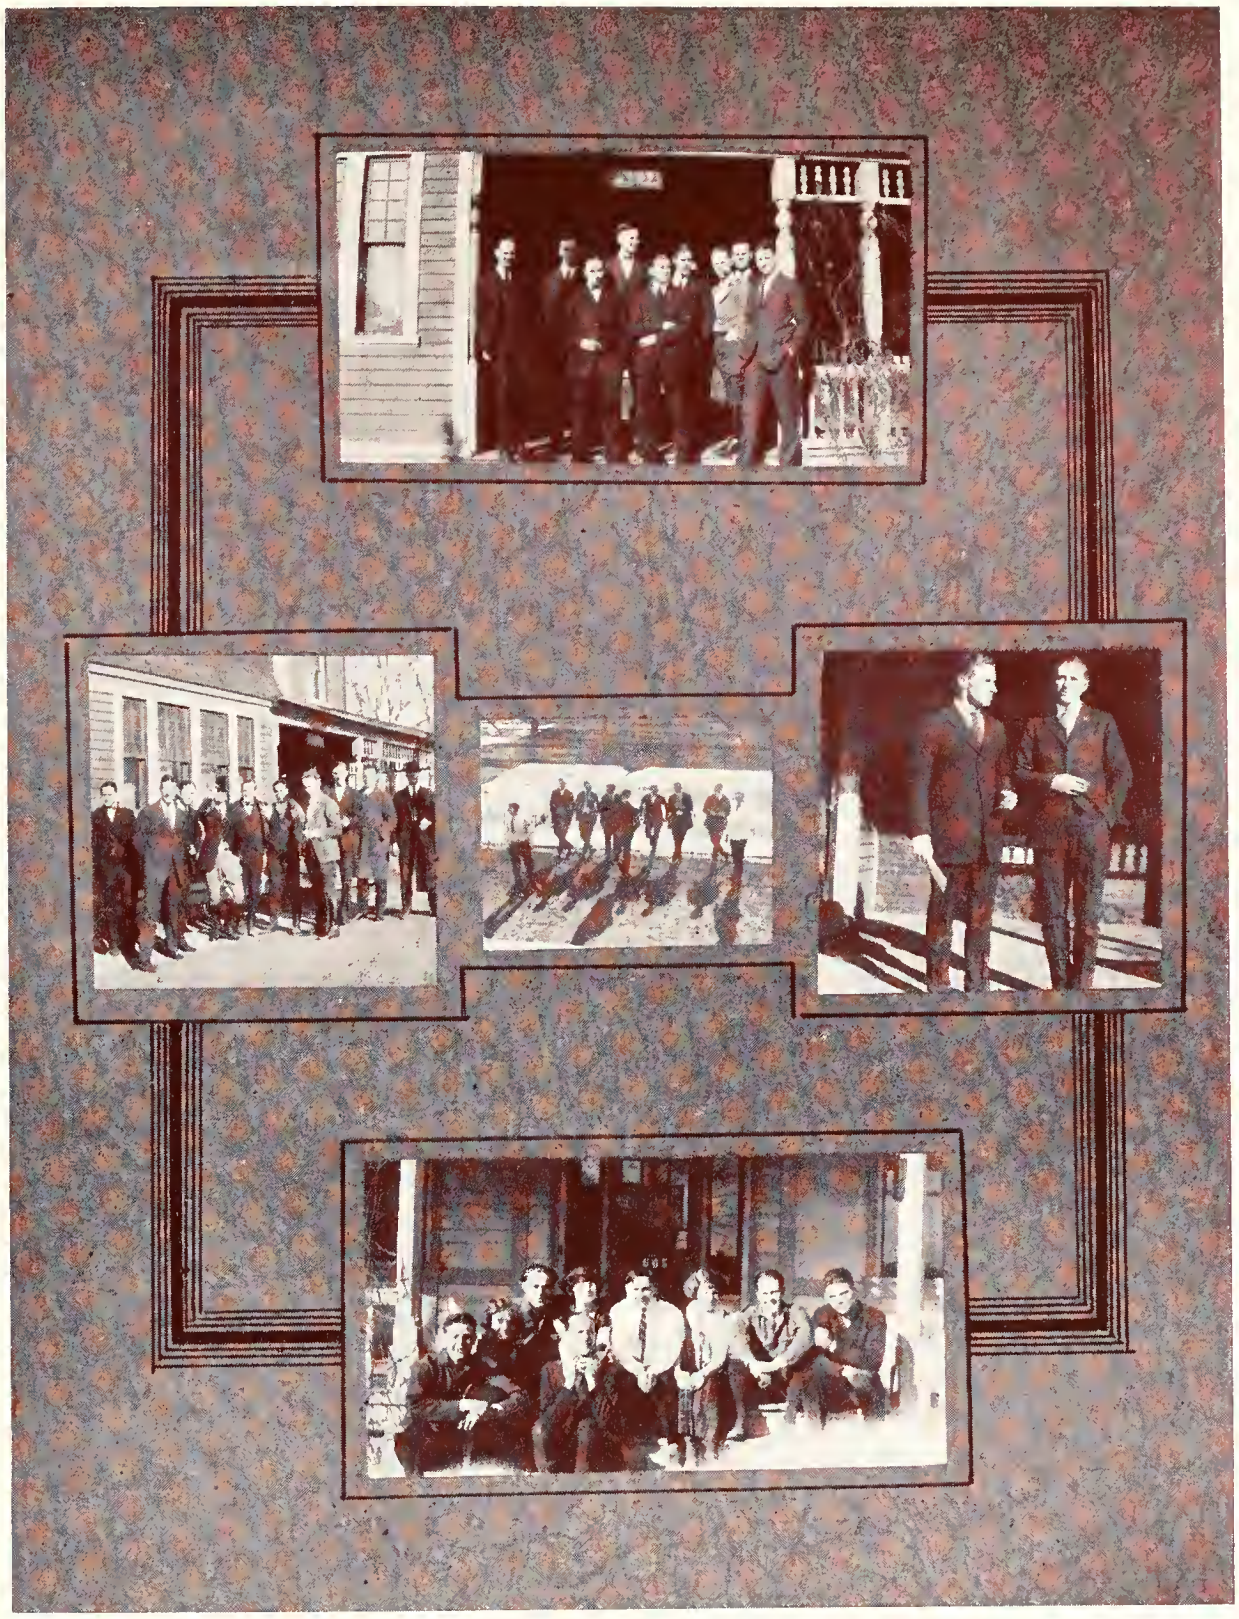


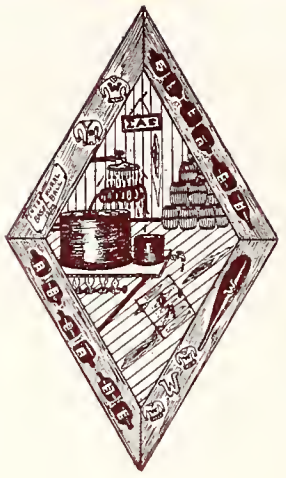
A T 'O
IN'T HEY NEST?

Made in Va. Institute Sept. 11, 1865. (This ended the Civil War.)
Wyo. Gimme Zi began to March 24, 1913.

Colors: Ancient Copper and Raindrop. Flower: Coffee Cake (White).

This pin was not either made in Germany, you nasty thing, and so soon after the war, too. As I started to remark, these boys have a high batting average on the links. Their front gate is still missing, and as one of their number said, "It is neither here nor there." Their pigskin booters do not exceed their good looks by a goodly margin. Why do they think Caruso had anything to do with the invention of the half-tone? Now that is rather unfair to this chapter, don't you think? The house they are living in was formerly an old Indian Stockade but was turned over to the present inmates in later years. Yes, the heels of their socks are above reproach this year. They are all firm believers in the adage that "Your mirror knows best."





S A E

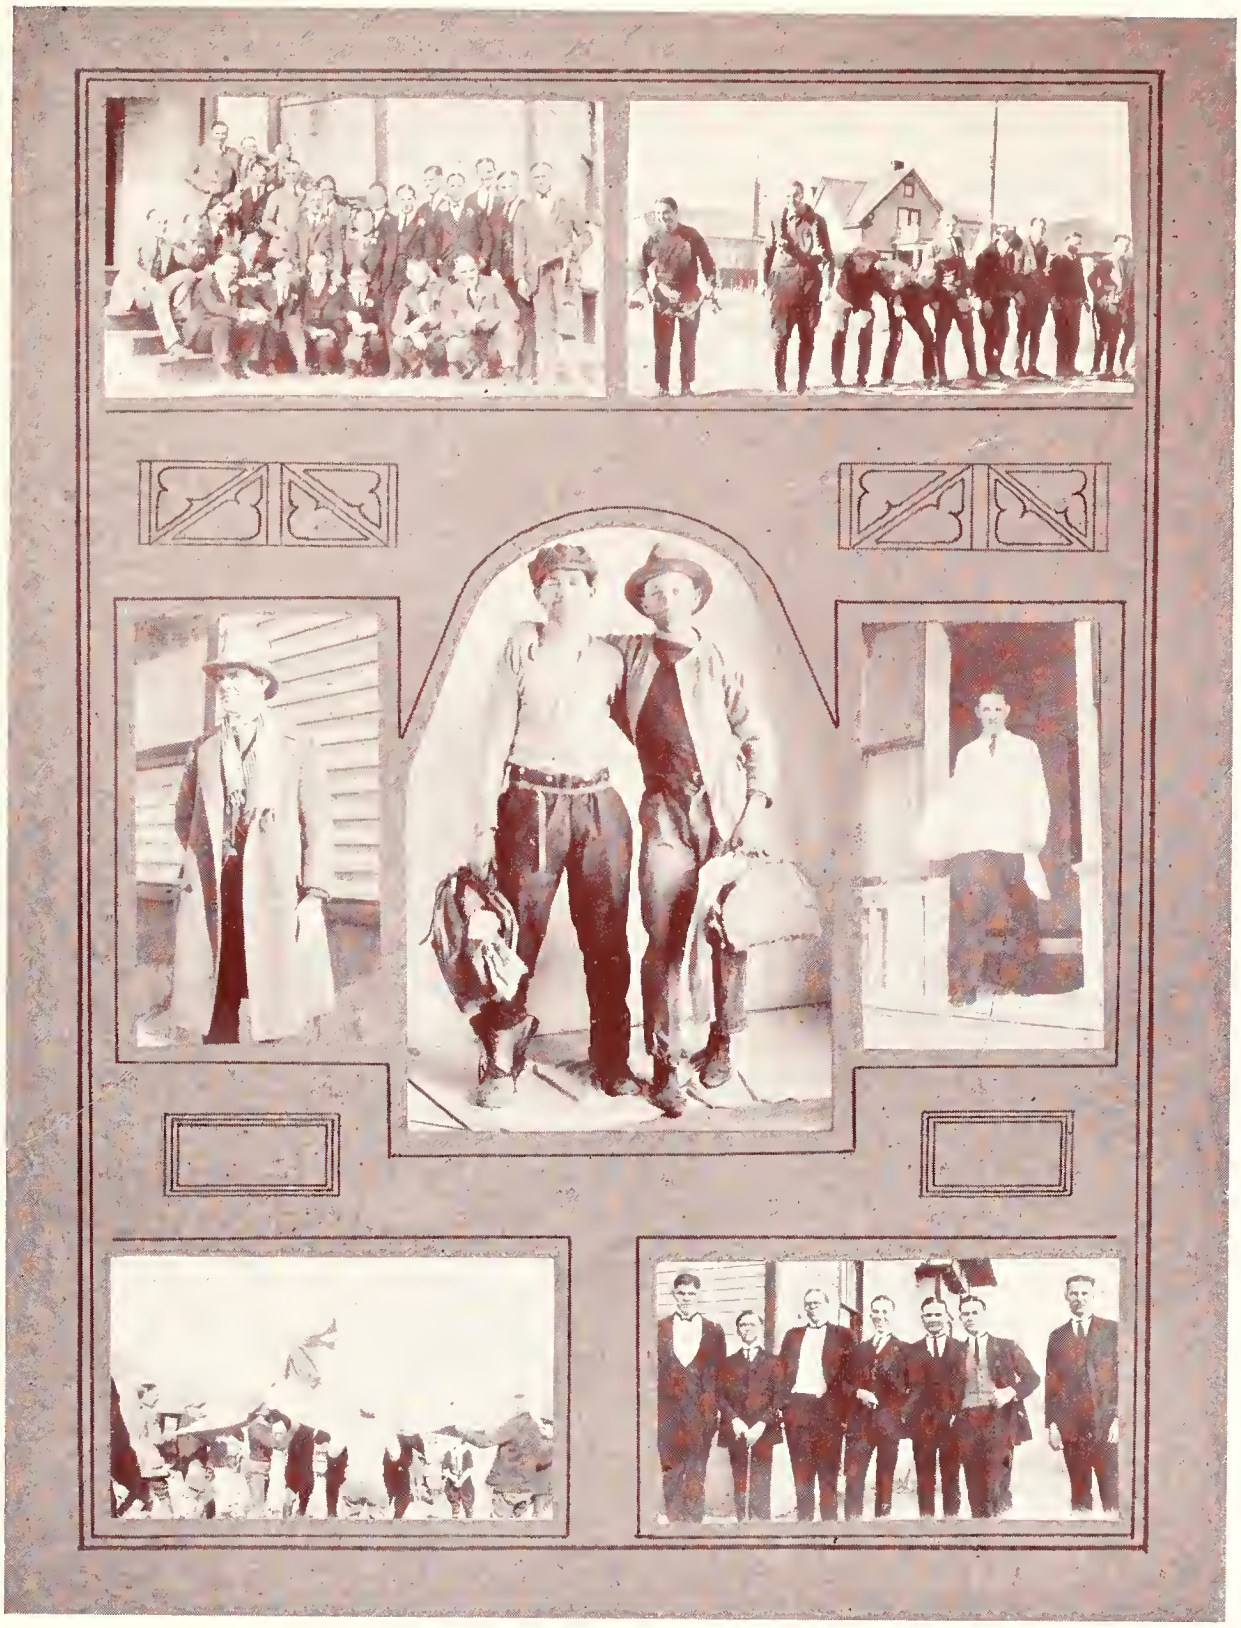
OME RE NFANTS

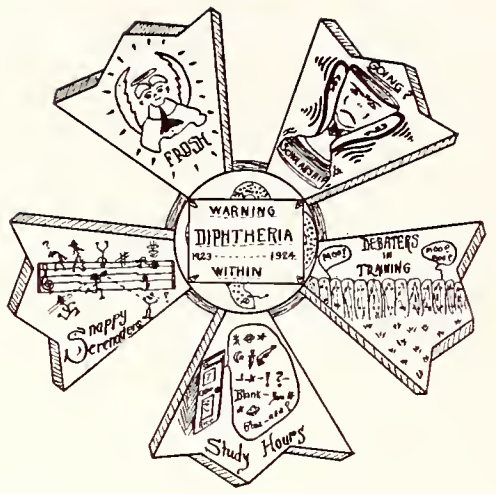
Built at Uni. Alabama Mar. 9, 1856.

Wyo. Alf(a) Chapter drafted Jan. 26, 1917.

Colors: Ink and Nuggets. Flower: Violence.

There is an old legend connected with this pin which we deem unnecessary to tell about here but we thought that you might want to know. These men are experts on many subjects such as fussing, etc. There is a rumor that they are the power behind the throne in Tammany matters also. During the past year they have progressed in many ways, including their seranades which are still common gossip on the campus. Their favorite indoor sport is Ma Jong and as to their favorite pastime—none of our business. These young men are bound to make a name for themselves in later life, and as one of them aptly remarked, "Is there any significance in the fact that suicide almost rhymes with Herpicide?"





S N
OME'RE UTS

Invented in Va. Mil. Inst., New Years, 1869
Eps' Dell'a came out Oct. 29, 1920.

Colors: Pay Dirt, Coal and Milk. Flower: Night Close.

No little one, this pin is not synonymous with them at all. One reason that they don't go to W. O. W. is because they can see everything from their windows. Moral: What makes them contented?? There is one of them who thinks the English Derby is a hat. So far we haven't noticed that their end of the world is in a blaze but no doubt that will all come later. Sometimes a person can't hardly b'ame their dog for leaving home for indefinite periods. The supply of GloCo has not as yet exceeded the demand. Their house was left them in the will of a famous ex-valet who died on learning that they had some athletes. After hearing their debaters practice one evening it is easy to see why the Frosh cleaned the yard next day.

My own Darling Connie:—

I love you more than before, and would willingly go through fire and water for your sake. I will meet you, dear, tomorrow at the usual place, weather permitting.

WALT.

* * * * *

Prof. Miller—If 32 is the freezing point, what is the squeezing point?
Dean Sanford—Two in the shade.

* * * * *

Visitor—In what course is Otto going to graduate?
Prexy—In the course of time.

* * * * *

"I'm cutting quite a figure," said the chorus girl as she sat down on a broken beer bottle.

* * * * *

"This is a stiff piece," said the organist at the funeral.

* * * * *

"Drop me a line soon," said the sailor as he fell over-board.

The boy was home at last. He had tried his luck out west in the mines for five years with little success. And now he was broke.

"Puss!" cried his old mother, seizing both his hands in greeting, "You have hardly changed at all."

"I know, mother," he answered in tremulous tones, "but there ain't no laundries out there."

AMPUS MART-ALECKS

Found in Va. Uni. before Xmas, 1869.
Broadcasted to Wyo. Sept. 10, 1921.

Colors: Blood, Sugar and Grass. Flower: Tilly of the Alley.

This pin was discovered on Pilot Knob by one of their Alumni. It was later remodeled to suit the needs of the local chapter. They have all the girls chasing them—we might go so far as to say one girl had a hand full of rocks. Their house is their pride and joy, although it has been said that they wash their curtains themselves. The orchestra that has run all the local cats out of their alley, holds forth nightly to the astonishment of everyone. They have a contract to make two pictures for Rook-the-Goof Moving Picture Company and more will be heard from them in the near future.

Esther Konkel—I'm worried about my complexion, doctor. Look at my face.

Doctor Pills—My dear young lady, you'll have to diet.

E. K.—Oh, I never thought of that! What color do you think would suit me best.

* * * * *

Kathleen—Do you remember when you were first struck with my beauty?

Arnold—I think so, wasn't it at the masked ball?

* * * * *

Ad—Don't kill your wife. Let us do the dirty work.—Wet Wash Laundry.

Wittenbraker was giving evidence in a case in which a farmer was suing the railroad company for damages resulting from the death of a cow that had been run into by the train on which Witt was a brakeman.

The farmer's lawyer was heckling Witt, and kept reverting to his pet question, which was:

"Now tell me, was the cow on the track?"

At last Witt became angry and answered the question:

"Well if you want me to tell the real truth, the cow was bathing in the stream on the other side of the track. But the engine saw her, leaped off the rails, dashed over the bank, and landing right on top of the cow, strangled her to death without a word."

ON'T ONKEY ROUND

Another by-product of October, 1922.

Colors: Sea Water and Brass. Flower: Bloody Nose.

This pin was lately designed at darkest midnight by some of the now departed brethren and has its meaning changed several times in the past year. The railroad would still be running wood-burners if it wasn't for their help. Their membership is made up of many types who are rapidly beginning to take up the reins of civil government in this community. The thing they are fondest of is a Ford bug. Sometimes they are seen in the vicinity of the Main Building, but not often. Their chief power lies in their habits of thrift, and as one of their guiding lights remarked, "Which does iron come from—raisins, oysters or noodles?" Gentle reader, we leave it to you.

"HOO ZIT"
IN WYOMING 1924

BROKAW, A. WILLARD, 1888-1922.—Been dead two years and just finding it out. About the best fusser in captivity.—His keeper is still after him. All the girls are wild about him, that is to to keep away from him. Hates his good looks. Lost his necktie early last fall and is still looking for another roommate with a good one. He sent a wireless to his brain last month—NO RECORD.

CAMPBELL, AUTO, (Ask him.)—One of our Asphalt Arabs. He's been to Cal-a-forney. Has played basketball in his youth—judge when. Shakes a mean Florsheim at hops. He invented the "crushed in" hat. Petitioned the faculty for seats in Main Hall and less lites. Co-Author of Puss and Pud. Photo by courtesy of Los Angeles police.

CHATTERTON, ELEANOR, (wouldn't say).—Intellectual, brilliant and nice. She is another young editor. One of the Four original Horsemen. Yes, her hair is all her own, you nasty thing. Capable of doing anything. (This was meant to be a compliment,) Wields big club at Hoyt Hall.

CONWELL, RALPH E., 1888-19...—Made a mark as a debater and business manager. Just managed to keep out of jail in Canada. Teaches a mean Pol. Econ. class and wears glasses. Keeps his hair smooth with Sta-Komb. Can't help it. First noticed in the Prep School.

CURLE, JNO., 1910 Model.—One of our late models. Turns out Quills by the dozen. Knows all the latest dances. Originator of the Matador. Can't be fooled about big league stuff. —Ask Jno. One of our coming authors. We can't predict just when he will be out.

FIELD, MARION, 1918-19. . .—Doctor Hebard's only rival. She has a nasty line, especially in debating. Has political inclinations. This photo shows deep thought. Has eight nicks in her hair brush. Is rapidly growing a dimple.

GILBERT, HAROLD, (Look in the Bible.)—Our "Prexy." Kicks a mean football and (about) other things. 'Nuther debater. Loves the girls (figuratively speaking). Takes "Ag" and knows where Carnation Milk comes from. No, folks, he don't use Laa-Smooth on his hair. This photo shows longing and was snapped in an unguarded moment.

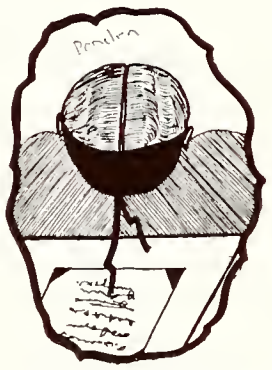
GUY, GEORGE, (New Model.)—Responsible for the "WYO" next year. (We extend him our sympathies.) Has a failing for pipes, etc. Hails from Cheyenne and the Mecca. He had his lesson in Military one morning. Has cultivated a good head of hair and "you just know he wears them."

JONES, NANCY, (She slapped us.)—All speedway records west of Rockies 1913-14. Drove Paul Revere to drink. Plays basketball at times. Was born with a tire tool in her mouth. (This last is hearsay, not authentic). She knows why Mr. Heinz picks on 57. Has a pair of goggles and aspires to aviatrix glories. Photo taken in Kolynos last summer.

KELLY, TEA JAY, 1790-19. .—One of the old school. Caruso's only rival, in his own mind. Wears a mean monocle at times. Likes to be in the spotlight and can entertain. "Just Like a Gypsy." He can fool the Freshmen easy.

KIMBALL, RUTH S., (Sweet Sixteen).—Very athletic and just loves "Gym." Discovered in Casper but can't help bragging about it. Knows a bootlegger in Arizona—S-hh-hh. Is very consistent about wearing out Library chairs. Has help in the latter. Got that school girl complexion in Casper. Can run matrimonial bureaus out of business.

MURPHY, MARGARET, 1908-19...—Sweet young thing. Reported to be the heiress to an Irish crown. We do not know just what kind of a crown. Winner of popularity contest and what not. She will go when the Juniors sneak (?) (?) (?) Called "Peg" by friend and foe.—No, no, she has none.



PENDRAY, G. ED., (no record)—Wiggles a nasty typewriter. Sometimes gets the "Branding Iron" out on time. Pushing the D. M. A.'s as hard as he dares. Loves dates (misprint). Nuf sed.

SMITH, ZEVA, 1902-19...—Is contemplating issuing the Cosmopolitan next year. She discovered the Blue Pencil. Believes there is a connection between "Say it with Flowers" and "Your Nose Knows." Publicity manager for Barnum an' for one year. Otherwise notorious for her escapades in getting out of Hoyt. She has the "Last Word."

WITTENBRAKER, C. E., 1906-19. . .—Many letters. Was very delicate in his youth and never recovered. Great Evangelist and his work on the campus is appreciated by many co-eds. Favorite expression is "Huh!" and this is also appreciated. He discovered that the Juniors snuck????

WOOD, EUGENIA CRETE, 19. .-19. .—Wyoming's Own. One season on kerosene circuit. Has a firey knob. Has a loving cup for—for—f——being a good student. She Parlez-vous oui oui charmante Djer Kiss face powder? Would like to have a street car line past her house. Photo shows anger.

WOODMAN, H. B., 1908.—Youngest editor in college. Good understanding. Seems to like chatter (ton). Prize debater. Loving cup 1922-23. Burner of midnight oil writting letters. Very conventional. Notice the shine.

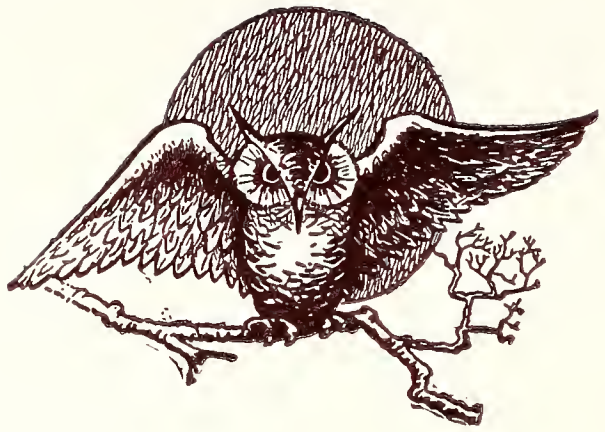
ORGANIZATIONS



Fie! Captain, Fie!

This national society was finally let into the University in 1922. Since that time its progress has been always for the better and we do not doubt in the least that some time in the future one of its members will get his name in the papers for some famous deed. Contrary to the expectations of everyone, membership in this organization is based on the number of consecutive flunks obtained in one term. So far the tie for first place still exists. This organization had a very humble beginning in Maine in the year 1897, when about a dozen students who had got kicked out of the University met and formed ties of everlasting brotherhood. Since that time it has spread to all parts of the United States and parts of Africa where, however, the mortality is reported very high. At Wyoming University all of the faculty are members and consequently think it their moral duty to still persist in giving flunks, etc. This organization's very life was seriously threatened last year when the local Union of Lawn Mowers tried to incorporate it into their Union. However, due to the untiring effort on the part of the members and members of the faculty this plan was nipped in the bud, and we still have our mighty organization intact. As we look back on the progress made last year and this year by the members we sometimes wonder how it was that we never were asked to join as it can be seen that many of our ideas are valuable and should be perpetuated.

The Rime of the Ancient Phi Kap

'Tis a lean and hungry Phi Kap,
And he stoppeth one of three.
"By the careworn look and thy hollow cheeks,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?"

He holds him with his skinny hand,
"When I was a youth," quote he.
"Hold off! Unhand me, wild-eyed loon!"
Estoons his hand dropped he.

He holds him with his glittering eye;
The one of the three stood still,
And listens like a gawking Frosh:
The Phi Kap has his will.

"When I was young and in my prime.
All 'ones' my records were;
In exile with my books I stayed,
Nor from them did I stir.

"My friend look on this ruined man
Who sage advice doth bring;
Do never strive to make Phi Kap
It doesn't mean a thing."

Women's Hell'n Panic

The Women's Hell'n Panic during the past year has rendered itself very conspicuous on the campus. During this time its members have distinguished themselves in athletics as well as scholastically. There is a rumor to the effect that the Tri-Delt representative placed second in the race for a LOVING cup. We all know the merits of this young lady and join in the congratulations. The Pi Phi's were well up in the race for less lights on the campus during date nights and we would like to see them keep up the good work during the coming year. The Kappa Delts were conspicuous due to the fact that they were the runner up in the intra-mural excuse contest. They based their excuses on the fact that they lived such a long way from the city. More power to them! The Gamma Zetas won first place in the lawn contest. Their specimen submitted had fewer cigarette stubs and matches than any other entry. So we could go on and name innumerable examples of the work carried on during the past year by this organization. One of the last bits of news concerning this organization is that they have had an addition put onto their pin in honor of the new gymnasium and the part it will play in women's athletics in the future.

Hi Upsilon Home Is Gone

(Honorary Home Wreckers' Fraternity.)

The products turned out by this department have startled the world to say the least, during the past college year. Some of the biscuits made by them are still performing nobly as a cornerstone of the gymnasium. It is understood that the intention of having another stone made to take the place of this one has been abandoned as the architects say that they are unable to find it's equal for general all around wear and tear. The members should also have some sort of mention made of the clothes exhibit. Examples of these may be seen on the campus at almost any time by an observer. Their assembly this year was generally conceded to have been the best one of the year. This was due to the large number of Paris-made clothes turned out by the members. The following is the year's chapter roll:

From constant use of this room you can seen that they are all good clean people, and naturally that type of plays will be the result. We are very sorry to say that no official play was presented by them this year. However, they have all been more or less active in other ways, chief of these being fussing and shieking. It was just lately made known that the Orphans' Circuit have asked this chapter to produce at least seven playlets to be used in their campaign for "Bigger and Better Asylums" during the coming year. Most of their members, active and otherwise, appear below:

The last year has been one of the most successful yet enjoyed by this organization. Its members in their official capacities have traveled almost all over the state debating all the large national colleges therein. The entire personnel has been in training for these events all year and it was with a great sigh of relief when the last was hurled at the rival institutions. One of the qualifications for this society is the ability of the individual to "Jew down" the price of a movie at the ticket window in 63¾ seconds.

This is the honorary (?) Sophomore Society which has been in existence on the campus during the past year or so. It bases its membership on the number of points received on getting to the dorm. late. Engine's Ears

Some of the most beautiful and wonderful works of art yet seen on this campus was produced this year by the combined efforts of the Engineers and the Domestic Arts students, although most of the credit should go to the Flannel Shirted Gang, for their's were the master minds. To be brief and come to the point at once, they designed the flowing lines of most of the late dress models lately seen on the streets of the city. Another one of their minor or by-products was the new gymnasium, but, of course, that need hardly be mentioned. It is also understood that after burning the midnight oil for night after night and with the help of some of the master minds of the Engineering Faculty at last one of the students in the higher math class was able to get half of one of the problems assigned for the first week in September. "Many are called on but few are ready" in conjunction with "They shall not pass" are the two accepted mottoes of this department. One of the latest and newest methods of completing the amount of work was discovered the other day when one of the Freshmen submitted a 20,000 word thesis with this idea in view, viz.: Instead of giving a problem the instructor is to go to the board and write the answer thereon. Then the student, with a pencil in one hand and a drawing board in the other, will sit down and work out a problem which will give the answer in question. This plan was recently submitted to the Board of Trustees and passed by the overwhelming majority of two to one. This in itself may be regarded as almost a moral victory for the Freshmen class. Among the latest instruments added to the already large number available for constant use has been the "foolograph." This little instrument, when properly manipulated will produce the most amazing results. For example, the operator must be, first of all, pure of mind and sturdy of body. This first necessary qualification alone has prevented every one from using this machine to date. However, the dean is a man of purpose and he, upon hearing the news, immediately went into a period of fast in preparation for the time when he shall demonstrate the principles of it to the public. We are sure more will be heard about this later.

Be quick to kick if things go wrong
But kick to us and make it strong
To make things right gives us delight
If we are wrong and you are right.

MILITARY

An Early Photograph of
J. SCOOP BRUNER
Which Explains the Prowess Exhibited by Him in the Individual Elimination Drill

Mildred Tarrie

The least that could possibly be said of the military work at the University of Wyoming during the past year is that it flourished—now please do not take this too literally but it did—flourish. The very first day with many a quaking in their semi-undaunted breasts the male portion (under 18 years of age) filed over to the Gym with hope in their hearts and woe written on every line of their furrowed brows. Yes the beginning of the Military Year had arrived. Two months later it was easy to see the terrible strain these young defenders of "our policy at home" were under. Their once snappy uniforms showed plainly that they had no doubt been in every engagement between Science Hall and the Mecca. But still with a brave and jaunty air they fell in every Tues. and Thurs. just one and a half minutes before the whistle blew. How proud we were of them as they stood there and answered "Here" when their names were called in the flute-like voice of their beloved sergeant. After four more months of unconfined joy on these bi-weekly occasions their moral was still of the very highest and the co-eds still gazed in open-mouthed wonder as they gallantly wabbled hither and yon about the drill field under the supervision of their respected officers.

Then finally came the much looked for day—the day of the inspection. Ah, it was on this day that these sons of Wyoming would not have traded places with the humblest convict in Rawlins, but on the other hand were more than glad to place their Alma Mater on the same level with Verdun and Valley Forge. Never had it seemed that their bright and smiling faces stood out more proudly or gracefully from the necks of their Kuppenheimer cut military clothes than they did on this day. Every single one knew that there was something more than the honor of the day at stake. When the inspecting officer passed through their merry ranks there was the customary doffing of caps and everything possible was done to make him feel at home. One cadet even went as far as to offer a somewhat dilapidated looking cigarette as he passed. Now just from this little bit of current gossip no one could in all fairness say that their very presence had not lent a distinctly mobilized air to our fair campus. In closing let us say in the words of the ancient Egyptian as he toiled at his labors on the mighty pyramids, "Hear Ye, all may not be as it seemed."

PUBLICATIONS

The Branding Iron

The school paper is one of the best publications known for getting before the public the true facts of any and everything. During the past year it has never been late in getting out and this fact alone should mark it as par-excellence. Although a great many of its articles are gleaned from other publications we are proud to say that there has never yet been a law-suit as the result. The paper costs $5,000.00 an issue and is only sold at the beginning of each year to certain Frosh who look as though they might entertain possibilities.

THE WYO

This year the "WYO" has been exceptionally good and such has been admitted by practically every member of the Junior Class. If you don't believe it just ask any of them. All their art work was made up of "Boiler Plate" found in the basement of the local printing office. The editor has fallen down on the job to a great degree being found drunk three nights in succession in his office. However, in spite of all these things the "WYO" will be the best one, in fact the only one published this year, and for such let us be thankful.

Fussing

A little over eight hundred students reported for practice the first night and since that time many more have signified their intentions of trying for the squad. Owing to the limited parlor space however eliminations have been going on in order to reduce the squad to about four hundred and fifty. There is now a petition signed by three hundred and eighty-seven which is being circulated in order to try and get more parlors in Merica and wider steps in front of Hoyt. The sororities have more than held their own (figuratively speaking, of course) in this matter. It would not be at all surprising if some of the members of the faculty also fell in line soon. The last game will be played about the last night of school and we hope to see a large number in attendance that evening. For the names of those participating, see the University Catalogue.

6. If you get hot during the game, open the window and watch the fire escape.

10. In answering questions the answer is either chess or no.

Pool (not swimming) Team

Almost every night when there is good weather you may find the men who are out for this major sport holding forth at the Mecca or Mint. At present there are a great number participating and some amazing results are expected of them when they return to their home towns this summer. Every one must furnish his own chalk and any one caught making a foul will be required to rack the balls for one evening free gratis. This method has been successfully tried out in all of the larger universities and there is no reason why Wyoming cannot be proud of her native stick wielders. Their respective averages may be found in most any of the large daily papers, and once a week a list is posted in the dorms so that the co-eds may appreciate the tremendous sacrifices the men are making in this sport. Just as this publication goes to press the report came in that one of the most promising massé shots had sprained his adenoids in trying a particularly hard scatter shot. We extend to this young athlete the sympathy of the entire community in his bereavement.

Congratulations: Class of 1924

Dice Throwing

The nineteen-twenty-four dice throwing team may well be called the "wonder team." Under the capable coaching of Head Coach Puss Campbell, the Wyoming dice throws literally "cleaned up." In the preliminary contests, the team experienced little opposition, rolling naturals with an ease that was a pleasure to watch. With the exception of one regrettable incident when the team was accused of using loaded instruments, and subsequently put to flight by their opponent's razors, the season was more than satisfactory. Indeed to quote Captain Curle:

"Mah goodness, I never done see so many natchels."

The big contest with the Union Pacific Pullman Gentlemen's Association resulted in a close battle, the Wyoming throwers maintaining a slight lead until about 3:30 a. m., when the Laramie police, who had been sent by special order of the Chief arrived as an escort of honor for the collegians. At the approach of the escort, our worthy opponents left hurriedly to keep an appointment in the vicinity of Mexico. Declaring the University boys the victors, the escort conducted the team home to the municipal hotel in triumph—and handcuffs.

The captain of the team has had long and continued experience in the art of dice throwing and tiddly winks, having been the All-American Left Half Tiddle for four years.

Song of the Campus Politician

I'm a campus politician
With an ax to grind;
With a manner unpatrician
And a one track mind.
Oh, I never foster malice
Though effete commands;
On my palm is grown a callous
Just from shaking hands.

I can grow enthusiastic
When the need impells,
But my mind is very plastic
And my thinking cells
Will conform to contradictions
With an ease sublime—
Oh, I never have convictions
'Till past voting time!

Sincerity's discarded
And one just pretends;
Why, if progress is retarded
I discard old friends.
These faults would not have mattered
Unrecalled, these sins,
When my vest is well be-spattered
With the honor pins!

You will have my approbation,
I will share your woes
If you give me indication
How your ballot goes.
I'm the frind of everybody,
I'm the glad-hand king.
Oh, my morals may be shoddy—
But the vote's the thing!

Our Campus Shieks and Shebas

With a self-satisfied expression on his face he strode debonairly down the street. On his head was a crushed-in representation of the one-time pride of John B. Stetson. His tie seemed to be in loud protest, but he smoothed it down with a hand that did not show in the least that his great-great-grandfather had ever won renown in his day by his ability to throw dirt out of a hole. One could just see from the cigarette hanging rather loosely from his lower lip that it did indeed "satisfy" in every way possible. His shoes were of the variety that were in great demand in the year of '87. That is they were broad of toe and seemed to be made of many different pieces of colored leather. His trousers did not "bag." Rather the critical eye of the onlooker could see the studied effect that they gave to the wearer. On nearer observation it seem that his vest did not match the rest of his suit. However, one could tell that this, too, was not an oversight on his part, but, rather the result of much effort on the part of the "Man Who Knows." His face was a wonderful example of the best of the tonsorial art. From eyebrow to chin everything was all that could possible be desired by the average chorus girl in search of a job. As he walked he just could not keep his connoisseur eye from the passing throng, and it seemed as though he might be in search of someone. He was—he found her.

With the practiced ease of a tight-rope walker performing before open-mouthed throngs at Niagrara she glided through the traffic with scarcely any attention to the heart throbs she was producing in her wake. Her jet black hair hung in a multiple of ripples about her face. One look at her face was enough to assure one that here was a graduate of an I. C. S. course in commercial painting. The light gossamer silk dress clung to her like a long lost brother. As the glance travelled down to her tiny feet, one could have very easily imagined her the perfumed darling of one of the ancient Chinese noblemen. The sheer silken texture of her hosiery would have told a blind man that "You Just Knew She Wore Them." Her hands showed that she was a total stranger to the great American indoor sport of washing the supper dishes and then hanging the dish cloth behind the stove to dry. From her wrist swung a dainty bag containing red and black pencils and from these one might have almost thought her a clerk, but—think on. There was also a package of tubular objects that she must surely have been taking to her father, only there was nearly a third of them gone. But enough of this as one cannot delve too deeply into a woman's heart and still escape untorn by emotions. Ah—at last she saw him and beckoned with the smart swagger stick she carried in her right hand.

At last we thought two perfect souls have met—however, my dear readers, do not get confused at this point of our narrative—for she was just then making her way to her seat in the movie, and he was vanishing in the dim distance of the silvery screen.

Her Last Party

Little Helen, after passing the tender age of twelve years, had at last come into her own—room. She gently closed the door with a terrible bang and flung herself over the gas jet.

"Why, oh why, did he ever think of such a thing," she chortled gently to herself. "Why did he have to turn out that way?"

Soon this period of abandon passed and she pawed her way to her dresser and, reaching under a pile of Whizz Bangs, lifted her opium pipe and proceeded to light it. After puffing with bated breath at the implement for a few minutes she tossed it to one side and, lifting the mattress, took a long pull at the bottle she had gotten from the vault just before dinner. Then, with a more satisfied expression on her face, she romped over to her dressing table and began the process of making up.

"This is an awful bother," she gestured to herself as she began to apply "Jes Feelit" to her fevered brow. "Why in hell doesn't mother get out of the habit of buying the rotten junk?"

The poor girl! She had every reason in the world to be glad this day, yet it seemed that something must have gone wrong—some one must have blundered, some unforeseen obstacle had been unexpectedly flung across her girlish path. The truth of the matter was, there had been something wrong. Now that this point is clear we will continue. She drug her weary Florsheims over to her imported camel-haired trunk, which had been left to her by her father, and, delving into its depths, brought forth her secret diary. She opened this to page three (she had kept it faithfully every day since the age of six) and began to write.

At first the tear-drops pouring onto the page made this nearly impossible, but after tying a sponge just above her nose she began again. This is what she wrote:

"That horrid Jack! He spoiled my party. The very idea of his insolence makes it hard for me to write this—"

With another sob of mingled sorrow and grief for herself she flung the little book into the fire and, going over to the dresser once more, picked up her nail file and sat down. After filing her nails viciously for fifteen minutes she sat down and looked at the presents she had received. They consisted of one Prince Albert tobacco can, a toothbrush, three bottles of "U Likeit," a half pound of lipstick and a black eye. Now we see why no one can blame her for her attitude toward life.

The poor girl—this being her first birthday and then to have something like that happen! She soon fell asleep and her aged mother, after carefully extinguishing her cigarette on the carpet, tucked her onto the mantel with the ease of the practiced juggler and then, with a hop and a jump, left the room lest she awaken the child. Her thoughts were of her own parties of her youth and she could not help, as she gently but firmly kicked the cat through the window, but marvel at the progress which is made slowly but surely by the younger set of today.

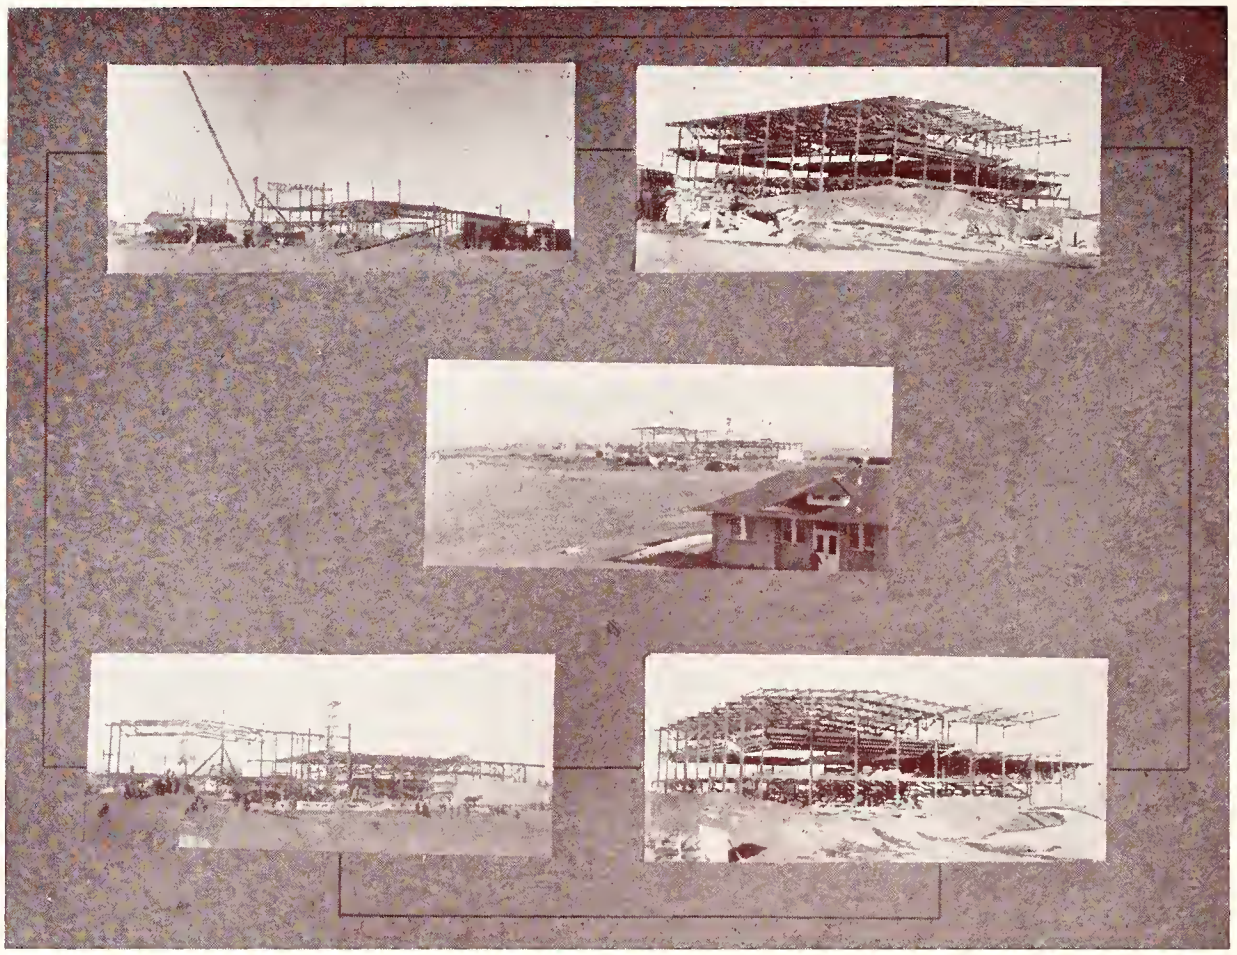
THE PROGRAM WILL NOT BE OFFERED ON THE UNIVERSITY CAMPUS.



The New Gymnasium

When the first University of Wyoming "gym bill" was passed by the Seventh State Legislature, two decades ago, the entire Cowboy student body took part in a "bonfire celebration"; $15,000 had been voted for a much-needed gymnasium, and, strange as it may seem today, a $15,000 gymnasium was amply sufficient to meet the needs of the University—then.

When the Legislature of 1923 provided the University with sufficient funds to build a new and much larger gymnasium the student body was no less enthusiastic and sincere in its "thank you." For twenty years the little brick gym had been struggling manfully to meet the demands of a rapidly growing school and, finally, when word reached Laramie that a new gymnasium was forthcoming, there was at least one brick building that breathed a sigh of relief—if brick buildings are capable of breathing sighs of relief.

Today the University of Wyoming stands on the threshold of a new era in physical education and training and intercollegiate athletics. For some time she has been standing on that same threshold, waiting to be ushered in and the little brick gym, laboring dutifully under an ever-growing burden, was much too busy in meeting the more urgent demands to play the part she would. But the usher is near at hand—the monster steel structure and the rising stone walls of the largest and most modern gymnasium and armory in the Rocky Mountain region foretell a future as bright and glorious as that of any University in the West.

The pride of the new gymnasium will be its main playing floor. One hundred by one hundred and eighty feet in size, it will be nearly four times the size of the old gymnasium. When a single basketball court is in use there will be a seating capacity of 4,000, or 2,500 when three games are in progress at one time.

The great armory wing of the building will be used by the military department and a dirt floor will make it possible not only for indoor military drill but for workouts by various athletic teams during inclement weather. The armory has been so planned that it will easily house a baseball diamond during the cold, rainy season of early spring. In addition to the armory the military department will have in the basement of the building a well-equipped shooting gallery.

Another feature of the new building is the tiled swimming pool. This pool will be 100 by 30 feet in size and fresh, warm water will be supplied continually. In addition to the circulating system there will be maintained a violet ray process of purification, thus assuring the swimmers of pure water at all times.

Perhaps one of the chief reasons for the building of the new gymnasium was the immediate need for a reorganization and expansion of the physical training and physical education department. This reorganization and expansion has been rendered necessary by the tremendous growth of the State University within the past few years and in order to meet this need Coach John Corbtt will devote the whole of his time to supervision of physical training and physical education classes. The physical training department will be of particular value to University students, and to this end the new building will be especially equipped. Special exercise rooms for men and women will be equipped with modern gymnasia and, in addition, will be provided with dressing rooms and showers. Corrective exercises will be one of the many features of the physical training department.

In addition to the main gymnasium floor, the armory, the shooting gallery, the swimming pool and the special exercise rooms, the building will provide recitation rooms and offices for the Athletic Department, the Physical Training and Physical Education Department and the Department of Military Science.

The new building is being built on the unit plan and has been so planned that future enlargements can be made without altering the building.

1. If a train on one track is making 18 miles per hour and another has an extra baggage car do you think the conductor has an inherited right to punch a hole in your nice new ticket?
2. If the % income of a law magnet is equal to his brother's age, and the sum of the two is still within the three-mile limit, what ought he to pay the income collector, provided his three children are married?
3. (Do this one mentally.) Compute the compound interest that Noah would have had to pay if he had checked the animals when they entered the Arc.
4. If the ledger of a banker is $100,000 short, give the price of a railroad ticket to Canada.
5. When was the first honest income tax figured and what asylum is he now in?

Engineering.

1. If one gallon of water weighs 62.5 pounds and the length of a piece of string is 13.3 inches, deduce a formula which can be used in taking the cube root of co-theta.
2. Why is two times two the same as two plus two. Give three proofs.
3. What is the name of the therom that Pythagoris invented?
4. The bending moment of a piece of lead pipe is x. The stretching power of the neck of a "goof" is unlimited. If you had a slide rule in one hand and an artgum eraser in the other do you think that milk can be used to remove coffee stains from a tablecloth?
5. If all the water which has passed over Niagara Falls since they started was put in a pile what would we do with it?

4. Does it make any difference whether or not you "Put your best foot forward" when making a speech?
5. While delivering a speech should one ever try to remember what one's wife told one to bring home for dinner?

These questions have been propounded to the crowned heads of Europe as well as to many "uncrowned" personages in the United States. The scale for grading persons taking this test has not yet been worked out so you can see that the grades of those taking the test cannot be published.

Now every one be honest with yourselves while taking this test and do not look up any of the answers, but just try and see if your education was all entirely wasted or not. By the way, if you don't like any of these questions or feel that they are too personal, you are at perfect liberty to make up any of your own and substitute them at will.

Two very pretty girls met on the street and kissed each other rapturously. Two young men watched the meeting.

"What's that?" asked his friend.

He pointed to the scene: "Women doing men's work!"

22 YEARS

22 Years ago, April 14th, 1902, the first J. C. Penny Company Store was opened.

22 Years have witnessed many changes, none, however, more notable than the growth and expansion of this business.

22 Years of service to the public—a service that has been unfailing and which has been just and alike to all always—naturally have enlisted legions of new friends and customers.

22 Years have taken this business by gradual steps on and on until today it serves the people of nearly five hundred communities in the United States.

22 Years of building good will and confidence have not only earned the friendship of the people but have created a place in the great markets of the country that gives to it a capacity the equal of that of any other concern to so buy that it can sell to the public at prices which give real savings.

22 Years, we believe, warrants the contemplation of even greater usefulness of our associated stores during the years to come.

A traveling man in a restaurant ordered, among other things, some honey. Much to his disgust he found a hair in it. "Waiter," he cried, "there is a hair in the honey." "Indeed, sir," said the waiter soothingly, "that is very likely from the comb."

The man then ordered ice cream, with the same disgusting result. He again complained. "Indeed, sir," said the waiter calmly, "the ice has just been shaved."

Then the diner took on some apple sauce with the same result. "Waiter," he shouted, "there is a hair in my apple sauce!"

"Quite impossible, sir," said the waiter with a bland smile, "I made it myself from Baldwins!"

Evolution of the Letter

* * * *

Freshman Year.
September 23, 19-3.

Dear Mother Dad, Sis and Everyone:

Gee, you folks can't imagine everything that goes on here. I have joined a fraternity and at first I thought all the fellows were just awfully glad to get me in. Now I have swept off the sidewalk and the porch, cleaned the hall and basement and more other darned things. Do you suppose they heard what that old Mrs. Brown said about me being lazy last summer?

Some of these old Profs seem to think that their classes are the only ones in the University. Even at that I don't think that they are putting anything over on me. Some smart guy tried to play a trick on me the other day. He came up to me and tried to sell me an assembly ticket. Well, I bought one and then when I got up to the door I found a girl there GIVING them away. Believe me, that fellow hadn't better try that again. (And so on ad infinitum for six pages.)

Well, folks, I guess you can tell that I'm showing everybody that I'm no dumbbell, and thanking you for the ten in your last letter, I hope you are the same.

Your loving son,
Jack.

* * * *

Sophomore Year.
September 23, 19-4.

Dear Dad and Mother:

Just been up to the Varsity looking over the bunch of Frosh. Golly, they are sure a bunch of big dumbbells. One of them asked me where he could buy a pin like I was wearing on my vest. It seems funny to me that people don't try and EDUCATE their kids before they send them away from home, and especially to college. Oh, well! I guess we just have to put up with them the best we know how.

I think I am going to make a hit with the Coach this year as he told me to be sure and take a bath tonight after football.

It just shows that he is taking an interest in me don't it? (And so on for three more pages.)

Well, Dad, the little loan sure came in handy that last time but maybe you had better send ten more next time to kinda cover incidentals.

Your son,

Jack.

* * * *

Junior Year.
September 23, 19-5.

Dear Folks:

Just a few minutes before dinner, so thought I would answer the letter you sent the fifteenth. Of course, you know I'm a pretty busy person this year with all the Frosh at our house to look after and the Sophomores are nearly as bad. But I suppose they will grow up some day and maybe be able to do something for themselves. My strong personality seems to be bringing me to the front rather rapidly as the Prof said the other day, "Mr....., your last theme shows that you write a very nice hand. (So on for the remainder of the page.)

By the way that check got here just in time as you know a fellow has to live up to his social standing and as you can probably tell from that bill I sent home, I'm 'way up the ladder.

Yours,

Jack.

* * * *

Senior Year.
September 23, 19-6.

Dear Pater:

I don't know whether I'm going to get just what I want this year. They do offer some of the punkest courses. But I suppose I had better take a few of them. By the way that check came in handy. Well, I'm off to the Kappa House for a short time. I suppose at the end of this year I can manage the plant at about $300.00 per eh! I've got some ideas of my own which will no doubt improve things a lot.

Jack.

Post-Grad Year.

REMEMBRANCES

The blind date your roommate got for you.

When you rang the door bell at the dorm and then waited outside for some one to answer it.

The first time you went to Dean Soule for an excuse.

The many times you have gone since.

Your first fraternity feeling (probably the paddle).

That night when some one turned their spotlight on the front of the dormitory.

That "satisfied" feeling after you have finally struggled through registration.

That "tired" feeling after examination week.

All the pretty high school girls who were here for tournament.

(This one for the women)—"That perfect darling playing center with curly hair and a dimple."

The night you stumbled on the stairs in the balcony of the movies.

The many lies you told your girls, and those she told you (?).

The welcome letter you received from Dad on the first.

That time when you waited 'till the last minute and then couldn't get a date ANYWHERE.

All the mornings when the Seniors followed the Juniors on their Sneak Day.

The awful amount of work you tried to cover just before the FINALS.

The terribly hard time you had getting a seat in Assembly after it was made non-compulsory.

The WEEK just before initiation.

The highbrow stuff you submitted for Quill.

The Junior Prom and your hard-boiled claw-hammer suit.

The relief after you took the !!??!!*??!!? thing off.

That night when your roommate or otherwise took your last pair of clean socks and your best necktie.

Military and P.E. classes.

O-o-o-o-o-o-o! O-o-o-o-o-o-o!

If you don't recall any of these things you have had a cylinder missing all year. If you do you will also believe that the "truth is stranger than fiction."

COLUMN WRITE

The cook at the fraternity house loves me so much that she lays burnt offerings before me at meals.

Many a dad has given a young man a black eye when he interrupted his daughter's dance and didn't hear the victrola.

We heard an awful row in front of a movie the other night. Two half-sisters were trying to get in on a single ticket.

An absent minded prof. is wondering why his wife is getting a divorce. She asked him if he'd love her even if she were ugly, and he said, "Why dear, you know I do."

Features

It is hoped by the feature editor that these gems of wisdom which have been so freely sprinkled through these pages will not go for naught. They are spontaneous thoughts which would naturally occur to every one who makes a practice to see things as they really are on the campus. However, it cannot be helped if any offense is taken at any of these truths, for we all know from the old adage, "The truth hurts." So, my dear readers, if the shoe fits, turn the other cheek. Many of the names mentioned in these columns were put in after the application blanks had been made out and presented at the office of the feature editor. Here again is another argument for better grades. If when the young and unsophisticated Freshman comes to College and prepares to learn to respect his Alma Mater, he will try and remember or at least take notes on all of the smart, semi-smart, silly, pathetic, etc., statements which he hears in the Common Market Place. If he does all this and then has the luck to have a hand in the Feature Section of the Year Book, then perchance he will not go entirely crazy trying to inject some thoughts of levity into these columns as has been the case of this year's—FEATURE EDITOR.

JUNIOR CLASS FIRST IN MANY YEARS TO SUCCEED IN SCHOOL'S TRADITIONAL SNEAK AMBITION

SENIORS FAIL TO FOLLOW TRADITIONS OF UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING FOR FIRST TIME IN HISTORY OF INSTITUTION AND FAIL TO FOLLOW THIRD-YEAR CLASSMEN—FOURTH-YEAR MEN AND WOMEN COMPLETELY BAFFLED BY JUNIORS WHO TRIUMPHANTLY SNEAK TO THE HILLS AND PICNIC UNMOLESTED

The Junior Class of this year holds a place which has been coveted by every Junior Class which has entered the University in many, many years. Having already enjoyed two early morning class-picnics, the Juniors today took their annual Sneak and were entirely successful in their avowed and traditional purpose of avoiding the seniors. The Class of '25 triumphantly graced the flag pole with its emblem, enhanced the school bulletin board with the information that the Juniors had departed and were well on their way into the arms of Mother Nature when the seniors began to suspect that one class was missing from the campus.

The Junior's Plans were without flaw and there was absolutely no clue left for the seniors. Consequently the latter calmly admitted baffled defeat and did not attempt to follow the wiley members of the Class which had just completed the arduous task of publishing an annual.

The day itself proved to be a complete success and remains in the mind of every Junior as one of the outstanding of his college career. A marvelous spring day, a magnificent picnic ground in the hills west of the city, and a congenial and convivial Class combined to make the day a pleasure beyond words.

The only regret expressed by the Junior Class was that the seniors, wallowing in the lethargy of their untraditional picnic, and dumfounded by the secrecy which had been maintained by the Juniors, were unwilling to follow the school traditions even enough to make an attempt to find the Sneakers. It is undoubtedly true that any such attempt would have met with complete failure, but nevertheless it is most unfortunate when any group admits defeat and lets traditions go by the board without even an attempt at redeeming itself.

The Last Copy

As the last piece of copy goes to press the Editor feels a sense of companionship with this little fellow who seems ready to retire to his hole and let the rest of the world pass on. The annual is complete. That there are many mistakes, many chances for improvement we are certain. For them we are sorry. If, on the other hand, there are certain respects in which this volume is worthy of the school, in which it merits commendation, for that we are intensely glad.

We can only say that we have tried. Our professors have had their suspicions confirmed that we are irredeemably ignorant. Our friends have decided that we no longer care for their friendship. Our books have had a long and restful vacation. The entire staff, the entire class, the entire school have done much toward making the annual possible. All are repaid if the annual is in some measure representative of our beloved University, if it is worthy of the Cowboy tradition which it has embodied.

With this, the last copy, a great effort has been terminated, whether it is accomplished or not, and the Editors are ready to retire along with the little prairie dog into seclusion far away from photographs, engravings, typewriters and printing presses, into the normal paths of life.

LARAMIE TRAIL

Across the crests of the naked hills,
Smooth-swept by the winds of God.
It cleaves its way like a shaft of gray,
Close-bound by the prairie sod.
It stretches flat from the sluggish Platte
To the lands of forest shade;
The clean trail, the lean trail,
The trail the troopers made.

It draws aside with a wary curve
From the lurking, dark ravine,
It launches fair as a lance in air
O'er the raw-ribbed ridge between:
With never a wait it plunges straight
Through river or reed-grown brook:
The deep trail, the steep trail,
The trail the squadrons took.

They carved it well, those men of old,
Stern lords of the border war,
They wrought it out with their sabres stout
And marked it with their gore.
They made it stand as an iron band
Along the wild frontier;
The strong trail, the long trail,
The trail of force and fear.

For the stirring note of the bugle's throat
Ye may hark today in vain,
For the track is scarred by the gang-plow's share
And gulfed in the growing grain.
But wait tonight for the moonrise white;
Perchance ye may see them tread
The lost trail, the ghost trail,
The trail of the gallant dead.

'Twixt cloud and cloud o'er the pallid moon
From the nether dark they glide
And the grasses sigh as they rustle by
Their phantom steeds astride.
By four and four as they rode of yore
And well they know the way;
The dim trail, the grim trail,
The trail of toil and fray.

With tattered guidons spectral thin
Above their swaying ranks,
With carbines swung and sabres slung
And the gray dust on their flanks.
They march again as they marched it then
When the red men dogged their tracks,
The gloom trail, the doom trail,
The trail they came not back.

They pass, like a flutter of drifting fog,
As the hostile tribes have passed,
As the wild-wing'd birds and the bison herds
And the unfenced prairies vast,
And those who gain by their strife and pain
Forget in the land they won,
The red trail, the dead trail,
The trail of duty done.

But to him who loves heroic deeds
The far-flung path still bides,
The bullet sings and the war-whoop rings
And the stalwart trooper rides.
For they were the sort from Snelling Fort
Who traveled fearlessly
The bold trail, the old trail,
The trail to Laramie.
